U. S., Britain Split Sharply Over India's Peace Plan

Controls Cited For Stopping U.S. Inflation

Joint Senate-House Panel Gives History Of Yankee Economy

WASHINGTON, Nov. 24 — (AP)—A Senate-House committee Monday said price controls had been a "major factor" in stopping "hectic price rises" after the outbreak of war in Korea.

The joint congressional Committee on Defense Production, in a report surveying price trends of the last two and one-half years credited governmental action with a major role in halting "rampant" inflation.

It cited evidence, however, to show inflation still was a serious problem to consumers.

The report was approved last week at a session of the joint committee, headed by Sen. Maybank (D-SC). The report was completed Oct. 22, before the national election, but a committee staff member said its release was held up because some said they could not study it adequately during the campaign.

Price curbs are among the controls expiring next April 30. One of the first tasks of the incoming Republican administration will be to decide whether to keep or junk these controls.

• • •

THE JOINT committee's report noted the "national economy had operated under restrictive controls" for 18 months and added:

"During that time significant progress has been achieved in mobilizing the nation's resources for defense."

The committee said American consumers now are paying "billions of additional dollars annually" because of the delay in imposing price controls after the Korean war began June 25, 1950. The curbs went into effect on Jan. 26, 1951, seven months later.

The report pointed out that spot market, wholesale, and consumers price indices now are about 10 per cent above the level of June, 1950.

Inflation is continuing to take a toll of moderate income families, the report said. In the last year, it said, the food, rent and miscellaneous items in the price index have advanced almost 5 per cent, or much more than the index as a whole in the 12-month period. Yet these three items comprise about two-thirds of all purchases by moderate income consumers.

The committee said higher food costs of the last year are almost entirely the result of increased marketing charges, and added:

"The 6 per cent increase in retail costs of the market basket over the past year has been due almost entirely to the higher marketing costs, as farm prices remained fairly constant during this time."

Utah Farmer, Louisiana Law Expert On Ike's Visit List

NEW YORK, Nov. 24—(AP)—President-elect Dwight D. Eisenhower had appointments Monday with a Utah farm marketing specialist and a Louisiana lawyer mentioned as possibilities for two of four unfilled cabinet posts.

Eisenhower mulled over the cabinet vacancies after one of his possible choices, Paul G. Hoffman, president of the Ford Foundation, turned down an appointment at this time "because of unusual circumstances."

The President-elect had a busy schedule Monday including a morning tour of the United Nations headquarters and a noontime conference with Vice President - elect Richard M. Nixon, whom Eisenhower has not seen since their election eve appearance together in Boston.

In the afternoon, Eisenhower was slated to confer separately with the two men prominently mentioned for cabinet posts—Ezra Taft Benson of Salt Lake City, reportedly the choice for secretary of agriculture, and John Minor Wisdom of New Orleans, considered a possibility for one of the other vacancies.

• • •

BESIDES the agriculture job, Eisenhower still must name secretaries of commerce and labor and a postmaster general to complete the cabinet. He also must fill the subcabinet posts of secretaries of Air Force, Army and Navy.

Eisenhower met with Hoffman Sunday in his sole political conference of the day. Earlier the general and his wife attended services at Riverside Church.

James C. Hagerty, Eisenhower's press secretary, relayed to newsmen Hoffman's decision not to reenter government at this time.

Hagerty said Hoffman had reaffirmed to Eisenhower that he "was not seeking and could not accept, because of unusual circumstances, any position at this time." The unusual circumstances were not explained.

"Of course," Hagerty added, "Mr. Hoffman will be available for consultation and advice as well as for temporary emergency assignment should the President - elect want to call on him."

In an accompanying statement, Eisenhower said he deeply appreciated Hoffman's campaign assistance and regretted "exceedingly that he does not feel that he can accept a government post at this time."

Eisenhower added that he was gratified to know Hoffman "will be available to me and to members of the administration."

• • •

THE WORDING of the statements left the impression that Hoffman likely will serve as an unofficial adviser to Eisenhower and may in the future accept an administration appointment.

Reports that Benson was in line to become secretary of agriculture cropped up after it was learned Eisenhower had talked with him Saturday by long - distance telephone to Salt Lake City.

Benson, a supporter of Sen. Robert A. Taft of Ohio for the GOP presidential nomination, formerly was president of the National Council of Farmer Co-Operatives.

He also is a member of the board of trustees and is on the executive committee of the American Institute of Co-operatives.

A native of Whitney, Idaho, Benson is a member of the Quorum of the 12 Apostles of the Church of the Latter Day Saints, the governing body of the Mormon Church.

Wisdom, Republican national committeeman from Louisiana, was considered a possible cabinet choice to give the South representation in his new administration.

No one around Eisenhower's headquarters would talk of the Benson-Wisdom reports.

Korean POW Issue Brings New Stalemate

UN Delegation Aides Not Even Polite As Differences Develop

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y., Nov. 24—(AP)—The most serious diplomatic rift between Britain and the U. S. in years continued unabated Monday despite efforts by India and other countries to close the breach.

Day-long harmony moves were being held, but diplomats held little hope for them.

The two great allies split far apart when the U. S. notified British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden that it could not accept a British-backed India compromise plan for ending the Korean prisoner of war deadlock unless all details were spelled out.

India came up quickly with modifications but these apparently did not satisfy the U. S.

The 21 powers which backed an original American resolution held an urgent closed meeting Sunday night at which U. S. Secretary of State Dean Acheson detailed the American objections to the Indian proposals. The 21 failed to find a position which would please both Britain and the U. S.

Feelings at the meeting were tense and afterwards press officers of the British and American delegations were not even polite to one another—highly unusual in diplomatic circles.

• • •

EDEN STAYED away from the meeting but sent his top assistant, Minister of State Selwyn Lloyd. A spokesman said Eden had "long-standing social engagement," but he went mum when reminded that Eden didn't make up his mind to stay here until last Friday and therefore it was unlikely that he had a New York engagement for a day he expected to be in London.

Acheson was scheduled to speak late Monday in the UN's 60-member Political Committee, but aides said he might postpone the speech because of fast-breaking behind the scenes diplomatic developments.

Poland was also on the speakers list and some delegates hoped for a tipoff on official Communist reaction to the split between the Western allies.

Moscow newspapers commented Sunday that the British-American differences over the India resolution just proved the Communist contention that a major split—and possibly a war (between the U. S. and other Western countries) is inevitable. The Soviet press also has made it plain that the Russians do not consider the Indian plan the right solution to the POW issue.

Both British and Americans made it clear that they are not divided on their basic refusal to send back prisoners who say they are afraid to return to the Reds.

• • •

THEY DIFFER over what approach is most likely to solve the problem and bring an armistice to Korea.

The U. S. position is that the Indian plan is too vague and could give the Reds a chance to indulge in all sorts of stalling and double talk. They say they have had the experience of negotiating with the Communists at Panmunjom and have learned the necessity of crossing all T's and dotting all I's.

Two Youths Seriously Injured As Auto And Truck Hit Headon

Two 18-year-old youths were seriously injured early Monday in a four-car crash on fog-bound Route 23 just north of South Bloomfield.

Injured were Franklin Johnson and Delmer Workman, both of near Johnstown.

Johnson suffered a possible fractured pelvis, fractured back and head injuries when the auto he was driving collided headon with a truck; and Workman, a passenger in the Johnson car, suffered a fractured skull.

State Highway Patrolman Bob Greene said the accident happened at about 2:50 a. m. Monday near the location for the proposed new roadside park, one mile north of South Bloomfield.

• • •

JOHNSON'S auto, travelling north, sideswiped a southbound truck driven by Clarence Foreman 59, of Columbus, Greene said.

That accident threw the Johnson auto out of control and it plunged headon into the path of a southbound truck operated by Robert Miller, 50, of Zanesfield Route 1. The Johnson car was demolished in the crash, while the front end of the truck was damaged.

As the persons involved emerged from their vehicles, a southbound auto operated by Hasel Bostic, 41, of near Lexington, crashed into the rear of the Miller truck, knocking it over an embankment and through a farm fence.

The injured boys were rushed into Mercy hospital, Columbus, for treatment, while Bostic was brought before the court of Mayor Ed Amey, where he was fined $10 and costs for failing to stop in an assured clear distance.

Patrolman Greene said the fog was very bad at the scene of the crash, probably a contributing factor in the principal crash and in the later pileup.

Military Takes Over Iraq After Mob Roams Baghdad

BAGHDAD, Nov. 24—(AP)—A tough new military - headed government Monday dissolved all political parties in Iraq, closed 12 newspapers and prohibited demonstrations in the wake of weekend rioting in which at least 11 persons were believed killed and 58 wounded.

Frenzied mobs looted and set fire to the office of the U. S. Information Service Sunday, stoned the British embassy and attacked two police stations.

Army troops rolled into the capital to restore a semblance of order at night after rioters had driven police off the streets. Armored cars and machine-gun carriers now patrol Baghdad streets.

Regent Abdul Ilah called on his Army chief of staff, Gen. Nur Aldin Mahmoud, to take charge at the height of the disorders. Hastily, the general decreed martial law and called out troops. Then he formed a new Cabinet.

After scattered disorders Saturday, trouble reached a pitch Sunday as mobs marched on the U. S. Information Service office, throwing rocks and shouting:

"Down with foreign imperialism."

"Down with forged elections."

• • •

THE CROWDS smashed into the building. They dragged desks, chairs, papers, pamphlets and even stores of automobile tires and batteries into the street and piled them on a bonfire. The building caught fire several times, but office personnel took refuge behind closed doors and apparently escaped injury.

Other mobs stoned the British Embassy at about the same time and attacked two police stations, burning one. Several demonstrators were killed in the clashes.

Leftist parties opposed to Premier Al Umari's government sparked the demonstrations Saturday, voicing dissatisfaction over indirect voting methods for forthcoming general elections, the date of which has not yet been set.

Government opponents demanded direct elections, but the regent and government held that such a reform could come only from the new Parliament.

Al Umari resigned under the opposition pressure and a non-party neutral politician, Jamil Madfai, was charged to form a new government Sunday morning. However, he gave up at noon in the face of the continuing violence.

Radio Signal Gives Hope In Plane Crash

ANCHORAGE, Nov. 24—(AP)—A faint radio signal is the only clew to the fate of 52 men aboard a giant C124 Globemaster which vanished Saturday night over the Gulf of Alaska.

Twenty-four search planes were poised here ready to fan out when weather permits over the 150 miles to tiny Middleton Island, the four-engined transport's last checkpoint. The weather outlook was poor.

The 41 Army and Air Force passengers and 11 crewmen were listed officially Sunday as missing in the continuing plague of U. S. military air disasters throughout the world.

Since Nov. 7, six planes either have crashed or disappeared. They carried 162 men, of whom 82 are known dead, 72 are missing and eight survived. Three of the troop carriers were lost in Alaska, two in Korea and one in Montana.

The weak radio signal, which could have come from emergency equipment carried by the Globemaster, was picked up Sunday by the CAA station at Yakataga, on the Alaska coastline about 150 miles east of Middleton Island.

The SOS was so dim no bearing could be taken.

Naturally, No Vacancies There

CHICAGO, Nov. 24—(AP)—Charles and Helen Lawson threw a Thanksgiving party Sunday for the 46 tenants of their two apartment buildings.

Lawson, who once operated three restaurants in California, cooked the turkeys, hams, yams and asparagus. The tenants expressed thanks not only for the dinner, but because Chuck and Helen often babysit for them, wake them up for work, take them golfing and fishing and, occasionally, to Florida on vacations.

The Lawsons have no vacancies.

Pair Of Toy Dogs Accepted For Ike

HATBORO, Pa., Nov. 24—(AP)—The household of President-elect Dwight D. Eisenhower is going to include a pair of dogs.

They are papillions, a toy species reportedly named after the French word for butterfly by Marie Antoinette. Sallie Pinckney of Hartsville, Pa., said Mrs. Eisenhower has accepted the dogs for delivery at the White House after the Jan. 20 inauguration.

Natives Arrested

NAIROBI, Kenya, Nov. 24—(AP)—Officials have arrested 350 persons in Kirawara where police opened fire on a mob of 2,000 rioting Kikuyu tribesmen and killed 15 of them Sunday.

Bradley Says Ike To Confer With Lowly GI

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 24—(AP)—Gen. Omar N. Bradley, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of staff, says President-elect Dwight D. Eisenhower is going to talk with the front-line rifleman as well as the generals on his Korean tour.

Bradley said Sunday that Eisenhower plans to go close enough to the front line in Korea to interview the "soldiers, sailors and airmen themselves."

Asked if he didn't consider it simpler to bring back Gen. James A. Van Fleet, Eighth Army commander, and other field officers to brief Eisenhower, Bradley replied a briefing of the President-elect by the Korean commanders here would not be "like getting first-hand information.'

"Furthermore," he said, "Gen. Eisenhower is not going to talk only to those gentlemen. He is going to talk to division commanders, lower commanders, and even a bunch of the soldiers, sailors and airmen themselves."

Bradley also hinted that the U. S. top command is keeping an open mind on the question of using atom bombs in Korea. He said:

"Now if they (the Communists) should mass against us for an all-out attack, you might be tempted to use it."

After 53 Years, Hat Is Worn Out

MALDON, England, Nov. 24—(AP)—The municipal council here has made its decision—it will buy a new official hat for the deputy mayor.

The fancy three-cornered one he now wears at functions is so frayed it slips off his head. It is the same one that has been used for the last 53 years.

City Stores Plan Christmas Hours

Thanksgiving Day will be an almost complete holiday for everyone in Pickaway County, with offices, banks, schools and public buildings planning to close.

But Thursday's Thanksgiving celebration will also mark the kickoff of the Christmas shopping season for most business houses in the city.

Many of Circleville's stores plan to remain open Friday evening and will continue to remain open during the remaining time until Christmas Eve. Stores following this plan will remain open until 9 p. m. each evening.

In preparation for the Thursday observance here, local stores which ordinarily close at noon Wednesday this week will remain open until the regular closing times.

Austria Reds Admit Arrest Of 2 Yankees

VIENNA, Nov. 24—(AP)—An Austrian Communist newspaper admitted Monday the Reds arrested the missing American Field brothers, Noel and Hermann, who disappeared behind the Iron Curtain three years ago.

Since Noel Field, former State Department employe, vanished in Prague in May, 1949, and his brother Hermann, a Cleveland architect, disappeared in Warsaw in August, 1949, one thing has never been clear:

Were they kidnapped, along with Noel's German-born wife, Herta, and his adopted daughter, or did they flee the West of their own free will?

The Communists, in their various "show" trials including the present accusation of Rudolf Slansky and others in Prague, always have contended the Fields worked for the wartime U. S. Office of Strategic Services and were American spies. In the West, however, there have been many suggestions the brothers were double agents and Noel, especially, worked for the Soviet.

It was over this doubtful point that the Vienna Red newspaper Volksstimme Monday disclosed their arrest. It was wrong, said the newspaper, to call the Fields "American Communists."

"In reality, neither regarded themselves as Communists," the paper explained. "After their arrest, the American State Department voluntarily said they had a special mission."

This was the first time any Communist organ has spoken of the Fields' "arrest."

Merchants Plan Yule Trimmings

Circleville's retail merchants at a meeting Monday agreed to help sponsor downtown community decorations during the Christmas season.

The retailers, members of Circleville Chamber of Commerce, announced plans for lighted and decorated Christmas trees on each corner at Court and Main streets and for a Christmas scene in front of Pickaway County Courthouse.

The merchants will sponsor the decorations in cooperation with the Chamber.

Costs and details of the downtown trimmings were being estimated by Dick Martin, hired to set up the decorations.

Announcement of plans by the merchants was made by Jim Yost.

Wisconsin Tapped

CHICAGO, Nov. 24—(AP)—The University of Wisconsin was selected Monday afternoon by the Big Ten athletic directors to represent the conference in the Rose Bowl next New Year's Day against Southern California.

Bingo Promoter Says Game Legal

COLUMBUS, Nov. 24 — (AP)—Paul Jones contends the bingo game he ran Saturday night was perfectly legal, because he didn't charge for the playing cards.

But police thought he might be wrong. So they arrested the 45-year-old admitted bingo promoter for operating a game of chance, illegal in Ohio. Members of the Columbus vice squad attended the game and carted off Jones as a prize. They found a barrel in which players could place "contributions." Police said they counted $427.72 in the barrel, which they confiscated.

Taft To Outline His Farm Policy

COLUMBUS, Nov. 24 — (AP)—Sen. Robert A. Taft (R-Ohio) makes his first major address since the election Monday night when he talks to the 34th annual meeting of the Ohio Farm Bureau Federation here.

He is expected to present his views on price supports for farm products. He is on record as favoring a flexible program. Rep. Harold D. Cooley (D-N. C.) will present opposing views on supports Tuesday night. Cooley, outgoing chairman of the House Agriculture Committee, favors guaranteeing 90 per cent of parity.

Nation's Laws On Labor Face Rewrite Job

WASHINGTON, Nov. 24 — (AP)—Signs on Capitol Hill point to a major rewriting of the nation's labor law by the new Republican 83rd Congress — possibly even junking the Taft-Hartley Act.

Rep. McConnell (R-Pa), who steps up to the chairmanship of the House Labor Committee in the GOP-controlled Congress, says:

"We are certainly going to have changes in the labor-management relations law. I certainly anticipate them, but how they will be made I can't yet say."

Sen. Taft (R-Ohio) wants to keep the law that bears his name, but revamp it through a series of amendments.

Strong feeling is reported to exist among some GOP lawmakers for completely rewriting basic labor-management legislation—and in so-doing, bury for good the controversial association of the Taft-Hartley with the Republican party.

As the committee's ranking minority member in the last Congress, McConnell worked out a mine safety bill satisfactory to labor, operators and the government after getting all parties to compromise their differences.

McConnell was reported to have in mind the same sort of an approach to working out a new labor-management relations act to take the place of Taft-Hartley.

McConnell, an investment banker and not a lawyer, believes Taft-Hartley is too legalistic and obscure to be understood readily.

Businessman Turns Thug, Is Killed By Guard

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 24—(AP)—While police sought to learn what turned a respected businessman into a bandit, a guard who killed him before being overcome by gas in an attempted armored money truck robbery died Monday.

Thomas F. Doerflinger, the 24-year-old guard, suffered fatal ammonia burns of the face and lungs during the daring, daylight robbery attempt on a busy street Friday. He died in City Hospital.

The amateur holdup man, later identified as Jacob R. Katz, head of an ice cream store chain, sent a searing stream of gas from a crude, home-made bomb through an opening into the truck's locked money compartment where Doerflinger was on duty alone.

Although blinded, the guard drew his pistol and fired five shots back through the aperture in the rear of the truck cab, killing Katz.

Two other guards, who had entered the Mound City Trust Co. to make a delivery of cash, later had to pry open a side door of the armored truck to bring out the unconscious Doerflinger.

The 45-year-old Katz, a regular church member and father of three children, owned a spacious home in suburban University City. He was president of the Reed Ice Cream Stores.

Tot Found Huddled In Chilly Thicket

WASHINGTON, Pa., Nov. 24—(AP)—A 2½-year-old boy who started out to feed the plump turkey destined for his family's Thanksgiving Day dinner and lost himself in rain-swept woods for nearly 24 hours, is now safe in a warm hospital.

George (Butch) Bell of nearby Avella wandered away from his home Saturday. He was clad in blue jeans and a T-shirt. A search party Sunday found the youngster, soaked from rain and scratched from underbrush, huddled in a dense thicket about 2½ miles from his home.

'Lips' Returning

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 24—(AP)—Local police, unable to link Leonard (Lips) Moceri to four recent mob killings in this area, are shipping him back to Toledo, O., where authorities want to prosecute on a 20-year-old indictment covering four gangland executions.

News Of Fatal Crash Kills Woman

IRONTON, Nov. 24—(AP)—Mrs. Irvin Hall died of a heart attack Sunday shortly after being notified of the death of her 25-year-old daughter in a traffic accident near Portsmouth.

The daughter, Mrs. Charles Roberts of Ironton, died in an automobile collision that took the lives of two other Southern Ohioans—Mrs. Lafe Taylor, 62, of McDermott, and her grandson, Taylor Miller, 5, of Sciotoville.

Humphrey Plans Battle For FEPC

WASHINGTON, Nov. 24 — (AP)—Sen. Humphrey (D-Minn) says that during the next Congress he will vigorously renew the fight for a federal law to forbid racial and other discrimination in employment.

Humphrey said he will refuse to soft-pedal the Fair Employment Practices Commission issue in the interest of harmony between Northern and Southern Democrat because "we won't have Democratic solidarity on some issues and this is one of them."

FHA Processing A-Plant Loans

COLUMBUS, Nov. 24 — (AP)—The Federal Housing Administration Monday started processing the application for loans on 2,062 housing units for atomic energy plant workers in Southern Ohio. The FHA will approve 1,000 of the units, 750 to be rented and 259 to be sold.

FHA Director Karl Kumler said private builders have made loan applications for units in Waverly, Jackson, Portsmouth and Chillicothe. His office will determine which builders obtain the loans.

Teen-Age Draft Seen In Offing

WASHINGTON, Nov. 24 — (AP)—Selective Service may begin drafting 19-year-olds soon, but definitely not before the end of January.

An official said surveys of the manpower situation in the nation are being assembled to provide an up-to-date picture on how many 20-year-olds still are available for the draft.

Storm Awaited

Traffic Kills 13

COLUMBUS, Nov. 24 — (AP)—The commonplace act of crossing a street cost three persons their lives over the weekend, bringing the Ohio traffic toll to at least 13.

Two Youths Seriously Injured As Auto And Truck Hit Headon

Two 18-year-old youths were seriously injured early Monday in a four-car crash on fog-bound Route 23 just north of South Bloomfield.

Injured were Franklin Johnson and Delmer Workman, both of near Johnstown.

Johnson suffered a possible fractured pelvis, fractured back and head injuries when the auto he was driving collided headon with a truck; and Workman, a passenger in the Johnson car, suffered a fractured skull.

State Highway Patrolman Bob Greene said the accident happened at about 2:50 a. m. Monday near the location for the proposed new roadside park, one mile north of South Bloomfield.

• • •

JOHNSON'S auto, travelling north, sideswiped a southbound truck driven by Clarence Foreman 59, of Columbus, Greene said.

That accident threw the Johnson auto out of control and it plunged headon into the path of a southbound truck operated by Robert Miller, 50, of Zanesfield Route 1. The Johnson car was demolished in the crash, while the front end of the truck was damaged.

As the persons involved emerged from their vehicles, a southbound auto operated by Hasel Bostic, 41, of near Lexington, crashed into the rear of the Miller truck, knocking it over an embankment and through a farm fence.

The injured boys were rushed into Mercy hospital, Columbus, for treatment, while Bostic was brought before the court of Mayor Ed Amey, where he was fined $10 and costs for failing to stop in an assured clear distance.

Patrolman Greene said the fog was very bad at the scene of the crash, probably a contributing factor in the principal crash and in the later pileup.

Military Takes Over Iraq After Mob Roams Baghdad

BAGHDAD, Nov. 24—(AP)—A tough new military - headed government Monday dissolved all political parties in Iraq, closed 12 newspapers and prohibited demonstrations in the wake of weekend rioting in which at least 11 persons were believed killed and 58 wounded.

Frenzied mobs looted and set fire to the office of the U. S. Information Service Sunday, stoned the British embassy and attacked two police stations.

Army troops rolled into the capital to restore a semblance of order at night after rioters had driven police off the streets. Armored cars and machine-gun carriers now patrol Baghdad streets.

Regent Abdul Ilah called on his Army chief of staff, Gen. Nur Aldin Mahmoud, to take charge at the height of the disorders. Hastily, the general decreed martial law and called out troops. Then he formed a new Cabinet.

After scattered disorders Saturday, trouble reached a pitch Sunday as mobs marched on the U. S. Information Service office, throwing rocks and shouting:

"Down with foreign imperialism."

• • •

THE CROWDS smashed into the building. They dragged desks, chairs, papers, pamphlets and even stores of automobile tires and batteries into the street and piled them on a bonfire. The building caught fire several times, but office personnel took refuge behind closed doors and apparently escaped injury.

Other mobs stoned the British Embassy at about the same time and attacked two police stations, burning one. Several demonstrators were killed in the clashes.

Leftist parties opposed to Premier Al Umari's government sparked the demonstrations Saturday, voicing dissatisfaction over indirect voting methods for forthcoming general elections, the date of which has not yet been set.

Government opponents demanded direct elections, but the regent and government held that such a reform could come only from the new Parliament.

Al Umari resigned under the opposition pressure and a non-party neutral politician, Jamil Madfai, was charged to form a new government Sunday morning. However, he gave up at noon in the face of the continuing violence.

Radio Signal Gives Hope In Plane Crash

ANCHORAGE, Nov. 24—(AP)—A faint radio signal is the only clew to the fate of 52 men aboard a giant C124 Globemaster which vanished Saturday night over the Gulf of Alaska.

Twenty-four search planes were poised here ready to fan out when weather permits over the 150 miles to tiny Middleton Island, the four-engined transport's last checkpoint. The weather outlook was poor.

The 41 Army and Air Force passengers and 11 crewmen were listed officially Sunday as missing in the continuing plague of U. S. military air disasters throughout the world.

Since Nov. 7, six planes either have crashed or disappeared. They carried 162 men, of whom 82 are known dead, 72 are missing and eight survived. Three of the troop carriers were lost in Alaska, two in Korea and one in Montana.

The weak radio signal, which could have come from emergency equipment carried by the Globemaster, was picked up Sunday by the CAA station at Yakataga, on the Alaska coastline about 150 miles east of Middleton Island.

The SOS was so dim no bearing could be taken.

Naturally, No Vacancies There

CHICAGO, Nov. 24—(AP)—Charles and Helen Lawson threw a Thanksgiving party Sunday for the 46 tenants of their two apartment buildings.

Lawson, who once operated three restaurants in California, cooked the turkeys, hams, yams and asparagus. The tenants expressed thanks not only for the dinner, but because Chuck and Helen often babysit for them, wake them up for work, take them golfing and fishing and, occasionally, to Florida on vacations.

The Lawsons have no vacancies.

Pair Of Toy Dogs Accepted For Ike

HATBORO, Pa., Nov. 24—(AP)—The household of President-elect Dwight D. Eisenhower is going to include a pair of dogs.

They are papillions, a toy species reportedly named after the French word for butterfly by Marie Antoinette. Sallie Pinckney of Hartsville, Pa., said Mrs. Eisenhower has accepted the dogs for delivery at the White House after the Jan. 20 inauguration.

Natives Arrested

NAIROBI, Kenya, Nov. 24—(AP)—Officials have arrested 350 persons in Kirawara where police opened fire on a mob of 2,000 rioting Kikuyu tribesmen and killed 15 of them Sunday.

Bradley Says Ike To Confer With Lowly GI

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 24—(AP)—Gen. Omar N. Bradley, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of staff, says President-elect Dwight D. Eisenhower is going to talk with the front-line rifleman as well as the generals on his Korean tour.

Bradley said Sunday that Eisenhower plans to go close enough to the front line in Korea to interview the "soldiers, sailors and airmen themselves."

Asked if he didn't consider it simpler to bring back Gen. James A. Van Fleet, Eighth Army commander, and other field officers to brief Eisenhower, Bradley replied a briefing of the President-elect by the Korean commanders here would not be "like getting first-hand information."

"Furthermore," he said, "Gen. Eisenhower is not going to talk only to those gentlemen. He is going to talk to division commanders, lower commanders, and even a bunch of the soldiers, sailors and airmen themselves."

Bradley also hinted that the U. S. top command is keeping an open mind on the question of using atom bombs in Korea. He said:

"Now if they (the Communists) should mass against us for an all-out attack, you might be tempted to use it."

After 53 Years, Hat Is Worn Out

MALDON, England, Nov. 24—(AP)—The municipal council here has made its decision—it will buy a new official hat for the deputy mayor.

The fancy three-cornered one he now wears at functions is so frayed it slips off his head. It is the same one that has been used for the last 53 years.

City Stores Plan Christmas Hours

Thanksgiving Day will be an almost complete holiday for everyone in Pickaway County, with offices, banks, schools and public buildings planning to close.

But Thursday's Thanksgiving celebration will also mark the kickoff of the Christmas shopping season for most business houses in the city.

Many of Circleville's stores plan to remain open Friday evening and will continue to remain open during the remaining time until Christmas Eve. Stores following this plan will remain open until 9 p. m. each evening.

In preparation for the Thursday observance here, local stores which ordinarily close at noon Wednesday this week will remain open until the regular closing times.

Austria Reds Admit Arrest Of 2 Yankees

VIENNA, Nov. 24—(AP)—An Austrian Communist newspaper admitted Monday the Reds arrested the missing American Field brothers, Noel and Hermann, who disappeared behind the Iron Curtain three years ago.

Since Noel Field, former State Department employe, vanished in Prague in May, 1949, and his brother Hermann, a Cleveland architect, disappeared in Warsaw in August, 1949, one thing has never been clear:

Were they kidnapped, along with Noel's German-born wife, Herta, and his adopted daughter, or did they flee the West of their own free will?

The Communists, in their various "show" trials including the present accusation of Rudolf Slansky and others in Prague, always have contended the Fields worked for the wartime U. S. Office of Strategic Services and were American spies. In the West, however, there have been many suggestions the brothers were double agents and Noel, especially, worked for the Soviet.

It was over this doubtful point that the Vienna Red newspaper Volksstimme Monday disclosed their arrest. It was wrong, said the newspaper, to call the Fields "American Communists."

"In reality, neither regarded themselves as Communists," the paper explained. "After their arrest, the American State Department voluntarily said they had a special mission."

This was the first time any Communist organ has spoken of the Fields' "arrest."

Merchants Plan Yule Trimmings

Circleville's retail merchants at a meeting Monday agreed to help sponsor downtown community decorations during the Christmas season.

The retailers, members of Circleville Chamber of Commerce, announced plans for lighted and decorated Christmas trees on each corner at Court and Main streets and for a Christmas scene in front of Pickaway County Courthouse.

The merchants will sponsor the decorations in cooperation with the Chamber.

Costs and details of the downtown trimmings were being estimated by Dick Martin, hired to set up the decorations.

Announcement of plans by the merchants was made by Jim Yost.

Wisconsin Tapped

CHICAGO, Nov. 24—(AP)—The University of Wisconsin was selected Monday afternoon by the Big Ten athletic directors to represent the conference in the Rose Bowl next New Year's Day against Southern California.

Bingo Promoter Says Game Legal

COLUMBUS, Nov. 24 — (AP)—Paul Jones contends the bingo game he ran Saturday night was perfectly legal, because he didn't charge for the playing cards.

But police thought he might be wrong. So they arrested the 45-year-old admitted bingo promoter for operating a game of chance, illegal in Ohio. Members of the Columbus vice squad attended the game and carted off Jones as a prize. They found a barrel in which players could place "contributions." Police said they counted $427.72 in the barrel, which they confiscated.

Taft To Outline His Farm Policy

COLUMBUS, Nov. 24 — (AP)—Sen. Robert A. Taft (R-Ohio) makes his first major address since the election Monday night when he talks to the 34th annual meeting of the Ohio Farm Bureau Federation here.

He is expected to present his views on price supports for farm products. He is on record as favoring a flexible program. Rep. Harold D. Cooley (D-N. C.) will present opposing views on supports Tuesday night. Cooley, outgoing chairman of the House Agriculture Committee, favors guaranteeing 90 per cent of parity.

Nation's Laws On Labor Face Rewrite Job

WASHINGTON, Nov. 24 — (AP)—Signs on Capitol Hill point to a major rewriting of the nation's labor law by the new Republican 83rd Congress — possibly even junking the Taft-Hartley Act.

Rep. McConnell (R-Pa), who steps up to the chairmanship of the House Labor Committee in the GOP-controlled Congress, says:

"We are certainly going to have changes in the labor-management relations law. I certainly anticipate them, but how they will be made I can't yet say."

Sen. Taft (R-Ohio) wants to keep the law that bears his name, but revamp it through a series of amendments.

Strong feeling is reported to exist among some GOP lawmakers for completely rewriting basic labor-management legislation—and in so doing, bury for good the controversial association of the Taft-Hartley with the Republican party.

As the committee's ranking minority member in the last Congress, McConnell worked out a mine safety bill satisfactory to labor, operators and the government after getting all parties to compromise their differences.

McConnell was reported to have in mind the same sort of an approach to working out a new labor-management relations act to take the place of Taft-Hartley.

McConnell, an investment banker and not a lawyer, believes Taft-Hartley is too legalistic and obscure to be understood readily.

Businessman Turns Thug, Is Killed By Guard

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 24—(AP)—While police sought to learn what turned a respected businessman into a bandit, a guard who killed him before being overcome by gas in an attempted armored money truck robbery died Monday.

Thomas F. Doerflinger, the 24-year-old guard, suffered fatal ammonia burns of the face and lungs during the daring, daylight robbery attempt on a busy street Friday. He died in City Hospital.

The amateur holdup man, later identified as Jacob R. Katz, head of an ice cream store chain, sent a searing stream of gas from a crude, home-made bomb through an opening into the truck's locked money compartment where Doerflinger was on duty alone.

Although blinded, the guard drew his pistol and fired five shots back through the aperture in the rear of the truck cab, killing Katz.

Two other guards, who had entered the Mound City Trust Co. to make a delivery of cash, later had to pry open a side door of the armored truck to bring out the unconscious Doerflinger.

The 45-year-old Katz, a regular church member and father of three children, owned a spacious home in suburban University City. He was president of the Reed Ice Cream Stores.

Tot Found Huddled In Chilly Thicket

WASHINGTON, Pa., Nov. 24—(AP)—A 2½-year-old boy who started out to feed the plump turkey destined for his family's Thanksgiving Day dinner and lost himself in rain-swept woods for nearly 24 hours, is now safe in a warm hospital.

George (Butch) Bell of nearby Avella wandered away from his home Saturday. He was clad in blue jeans and a T-shirt. A search party Sunday found the youngster, soaked from rain and scratched from underbrush, huddled in a dense thicket about 2½ miles from his home.

'Lips' Returning

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 24—(AP)—Local police, unable to link Leonard (Lips) Moceri to four recent mob killings in this area, are shipping him back to Toledo, O., where authorities want to prosecute on a 20-year-old indictment covering four gangland executions.

FHA Processing A-Plant Loans

COLUMBUS, Nov. 24 — (AP)—The Federal Housing Administration Monday started processing the application for loans on 2,062 housing units for atomic energy plant workers in Southern Ohio. The FHA will approve 1,000 of the units, 750 to be rented and 259 to be sold.

FHA Director Karl Kumler said private builders have made loan applications for units in Waverly, Jackson, Portsmouth and Chillicothe. His office will determine which builders obtain the loans.

News Of Fatal Crash Kills Woman

IRONTON, Nov. 24—(AP)—Mrs. Irvin Hall died of a heart attack Sunday shortly after being notified of the death of her 25-year-old daughter in a traffic accident near Portsmouth.

The daughter, Mrs. Charles Roberts of Ironton, died in an automobile collision that took the lives of two other Southern Ohioans—Mrs. Lafe Taylor, 62, of McDermott, and her grandson, Taylor Miller, 5, of Sciotoville.

Humphrey Plans Battle For FEPC

WASHINGTON, Nov. 24 — (AP)—Sen. Humphrey (D-Minn) says that during the next Congress he will vigorously renew the fight for a federal law to forbid racial and other discrimination in employment.

Humphrey said he will refuse to soft-pedal the Fair Employment Practices Commission issue in the interest of harmony between Northern and Southern Democrat because "we won't have Democratic solidarity on some issues and this is one of them."

Teen-Age Draft Seen In Offing

WASHINGTON, Nov. 24 — (AP)—Selective Service may begin drafting 19-year-olds soon, but definitely not before the end of January.

An official said surveys of the manpower situation in the nation are being assembled to provide an up-to-date picture on how many 20-year-olds still are available for the draft.

Storm Awaited

MANILA, Nov. 24—(AP)—A freak Pacific storm with two centers bore down on the east coast of the Northern Philippines with intensifying typhoon winds Monday.

Traffic Kills 13

COLUMBUS, Nov. 24 — (AP)—The commonplace act of crossing a street cost three persons their lives over the weekend, bringing the Ohio traffic toll to at least 13.

Ervin Leists, Montgomerys Hit By Surprise Snow During Trip

Ervin Leist, city water and sewage department manager, expected to see more than three feet of snow in Circleville when he returned from a trip to the "sunny South."

Mr. and Mrs. Leist, along with Dr. and Mrs. E. L. Montgomery, returned here Saturday following a 2-week visit to Florida and other southern states.

On the way back, the group was "dumbfounded" to find highways blocked and communities stranded by 22 inches of snow in Tennessee.

"We were stranded along the highway with all the others," Leist recalled, "when we saw a truck from Akron and the driver told us really bad news further north.

• • •

"HE SAID he had heard over the radio that they had three feet of snow in Akron—which wasn't true, but it scared the daylights out of us. We figured Circleville was having another one of those Thanksgiving-time blizzards."

Leist said the party began running into a freezing rain near Knoxville at about 8 a. m. last Friday. By 10:30 a. m., when they were 53 miles farther north, they found themselves stranded along with hundreds of other motorists.

From mid-morning until about 3 p. m., they waited on the traffic-jammed highway and then returned to LaFollette, Tenn., to spend the night.

"We heard there were about 400 cars and trucks stalled in that locality while we were there," Leist said. "Power was off in the communities and the folks were using candles. Lots of places were cut off for quite awhile.

"There was one stretch in our trip—around Jellicoe, Tenn., when it took us four hours to go 25 miles over the mountains. Landslides caused a lot of the trouble.

"Things would surely have been lots better if the state patrol down there hadn't waited so long before stopping traffic. A lot of the big trucks we saw had jackknifed and turned over.

• • •

"SOME BIG buses had slid into the ditches. It was sure a mess, and for a long time nobody could do much about it, trying to untangle it all with single-lane traffic.

"What made it all the more surprising was the nice weather going down to Florida. It was lovely going down."

Vigilance Urged To Avoid Disease Outbreak On Farm

A six-point defense plan to prevent outbreaks of livestock diseases and thereby step up profits on American farms was recommended today by the American Veterinary Medical Association.

"Every farmer should have a planned disease prevention program of this kind," the AVMA said, "because in even the most healthy herd, diseases and parasites are constantly struggling to gain entry.

A farm may seem to be free of contagions and disease hazards one week and experience an outbreak the next week, the moment the livestock owner relaxes his vigilance. Many such outbreaks could be avoided if this six-point program were followed."

The six-point plan recommended by veterinary leaders includes:

1—Feed and house livestock properly to keep their resistance high—and maintain thorough sanitation to prevent germs gaining a foothold.

• • •

2—IF NEW animals are brought to the farm, isolate them from the rest of the herd for several weeks to give latent diseases an opportunity to show up.

3—Have livestock and poultry vaccinated for such problems as hog cholera and Newcastle disease. In areas where anthrax and blackleg have been a problem, vaccination should be employed against these diseases also.

4—Have livestock tested periodically for brucellosis and tuberculosis, and follow officially recommended control programs.

5—If disease symptoms appear, or animals seem to act strangely, obtain a veterinary diagnosis promptly to prevent disease from spreading and to bring any threatened outbreak under control.

6—Stay away from sick animals on neighboring farms to avoid bringing diseases to the home farm on shoes, clothing or other vehicles.

If all farmers would follow these six precautions throughout the year they could add enormously to their livestock profits, the AVMA says.

GRAIN FUTURES

CHICAGO, Nov. 24 — (AP)—Wheat fell back on the Board of Trade Monday following snow and rain over much of the southwestern drought area.

Other cereals were off with wheat at the start, but they reversed themselves in the second hour of trading. All the loss was regained and in some cases gains substituted. This was particularly true of corn.

Wheat at noon was ½-⅞ lower, December $2.32⅞, corn ¼-⅝ higher, December $1.64¼, oats ⅛ lower to ¼ higher, December 83⅛, soybeans ¼ to 2 cents higher, September $3.03½, and lard 5 to 10 cents a hundred pounds higher, December $10.30.

Fire Chief Warns Heater Needs Flue

Fire Chief Talmer Wise Monday repeated a warning against hot water natural gas heaters which do not have flues.

"No matter how often we emphasize the danger of having heaters without flues," he said, "there are many homes that still have them.

"It can lead to great damage and loss of life."

Circleville Fire Department Saturday was called at 5:05 p. m. to the home of Ray Reichelderfer, 936 S. Washington St., to investigate fumes leaking from a hot water tank.

Wise said the tank did not have a flue.

Driver Almost Felled By Gas

A driver of an auto-hauler tractor trailer outfit was almost overcome by carbon monoxide early Monday as he napped in his truck cab with the engine running.

He was identified by Deputy Walter Richards as Billy Barbour, 28, of Huntington, W. Va.

Barbour and another trucker pulled from the road at Routes 22 and 104 at about midnight Sunday to take naps. They were returning north with empty rigs.

At about 7 a. m. Monday, Barbour's partner awoke, went over to his friend's truck and opened the door. Barbour fell out.

The driver was not unconscious, but was seemingly partially paralyzed, Richards said. He refused to seek treatment, but recovered shortly afterward.

Motorist Held, 2 Others Fined

A Columbus motorist was bound to Pickaway County grand jury last weekend and two others were fined in the court of Magistrate Oscar Root.

Robert Combs, 27, of Columbus, was bound to the grand jury on $300 bond on accusation of driving when intoxicated.

He was arrested Sunday on Route 23 north of Circleville by Pickaway County Sheriff Charles Radcliff. The hearing was Monday.

HOLIDAY EXTRAS

By BETTY NEWTON

This recipe for Turkey Pie is one to keep in mind for use with extra chicken as well as turkey. Either biscuit or pastry topping may be used.

Turkey Pie

¼ C. shortening
½ C. finely chopped onion
¼ C. all-purpose flour
½ tsp. salt
¼ tsp. pepper
2 C. turkey or chicken stock
2 C. chopped, cooked turkey
½ C. cooked small onions
½ C. cooked peas
½ C. diced cooked carrots
¼ C. cooked sliced green pepper

Onion Biscuit Topping:

1 C. sifted all-purpose flour
1½ tsp. baking powder
¼ tsp. salt
¼ C. shortening
⅓ C. milk

Melt shortening in skillet; cook chopped onion until soft. Remove half the cooked onion for biscuit topping. Add flour, salt and pepper to onion in skillet; blend. Add stock, stirring constantly. Cook until thick and smooth. Add turkey, ½ C. small onions, peas, carrots and green pepper. Cook 10 minutes. Pour into individual casseroles or 6 x 10-inch baking dish. For topping, sift together 1 C. flour, baking powder and salt. Cut in shortening. Blend in reserved chopped cooked onion. Add milk; mix only until flour is dampened. Turn out on lightly floured board or pastry cloth; knead ½ minute. Roll out; cut with biscuit cutter. Place biscuits over casserole. Bake in gas range at 450 degrees for 12 to 15 minutes. Makes 4 servings.

Turkey A La Queen

¼ C. butter or margarine
¼ C. all-purpose flour
2 tsp. salt
2 C. top milk
1 egg yolk
2 C. diced roast turkey
4 slices canned pineapple
6 slices toast
¼ C. slivered almonds
2 Tbsp. butter or margarine

Melt butter or margarine; blend in flour and salt. Add milk, stirring constantly over simmer flame. When thick, pour a little over the beaten egg yolk. Stir; blend into first mixture. Add diced turkey and heat. At serving time, add the pineapple cut into small strips. Serve on hot buttered toast. Top with almonds browned lightly in butter. Makes 6 servings.

Ervin Leists, Montgomerys Hit By Surprise Snow During Trip

Ervin Leist, city water and sewage department manager, expected to see more than three feet of snow in Circleville when he returned from a trip to the "sunny South."

Mr. and Mrs. Leist, along with Dr. and Mrs. E. L. Montgomery, returned here Saturday following a 2-week visit to Florida and other southern states.

On the way back, the group was "dumbfounded" to find highways blocked and communities stranded by 22 inches of snow in Tennessee.

"We were stranded along the highway with all the others," Leist recalled, "when we saw a truck from Akron and the driver told us really bad news further north.

* * *

"HE SAID he had heard over the radio that they had three feet of snow in Akron—which wasn't true, but it scared the daylights out of us. We figured Circleville was having another one of those Thanksgiving-time blizzards."

Leist said the party began running into a freezing rain near Knoxville at about 8 a. m. last Friday. By 10:30 a. m., when they were 53 miles farther north, they found themselves stranded along with hundreds of other motorists.

From mid-morning until about 3 p. m., they waited on the traffic-jammed highway and then returned to LaFollette, Tenn., to spend the night.

"We heard there were about 400 cars and trucks stalled in that locality while we were there," Leist said. "Power was off in the communities and the folks were using candles. Lots of places were cut off for quite awhile.

"There was one stretch in our trip—around Jellicoe, Tenn., when it took us four hours to go 25 miles over the mountains. Landslides caused a lot of the trouble.

"Things would surely have been lots better if the state patrol down there hadn't waited so long before stopping traffic. A lot of the big trucks we saw had jackknifed and turned over.

* * *

"SOME BIG buses had slid into the ditches. It was sure a mess, and for a long time nobody could do much about it, trying to untangle it all with single-lane traffic.

"What made it all the more surprising was the nice weather going down to Florida. It was lovely going down."

Vigilance Urged To Avoid Disease Outbreak On Farm

A six-point defense plan to prevent outbreaks of livestock diseases and thereby step up profits on American farms was recommended today by the American Veterinary Medical Association.

"Every farmer should have a planned disease prevention program of this kind," the AVMA said, "because in even the most healthy herd, diseases and parasites are constantly struggling to gain entry.

A farm may seem to be free of contagions and disease hazards one week and experience an outbreak the next week, the moment the livestock owner relaxes his vigilance. Many such outbreaks could be avoided if this six-point program were followed."

The six-point plan recommended by veterinary leaders includes:

1—Feed and house livestock properly to keep their resistance high—and maintain thorough sanitation to prevent germs gaining a foothold.

* * *

2—IF NEW animals are brought to the farm, isolate them from the rest of the herd for several weeks to give latent diseases an opportunity to show up.

3—Have livestock and poultry vaccinated for such problems as hog cholera and Newcastle disease. In areas where anthrax and blackleg have been a problem, vaccination should be employed against these diseases also.

4—Have livestock tested periodically for brucellosis and tuberculosis, and follow officially recommended control programs.

5—If disease symptoms appear, or animals seem to act strangely, obtain a veterinary diagnosis promptly to prevent disease from spreading and to bring any threatened outbreak under control.

6—Stay away from sick animals on neighboring farms to avoid bringing diseases to the home farm on shoes, clothing or other vehicles.

If all farmers would follow these six precautions throughout the year they could add enormously to their livestock profits, the AVMA says.

GRAIN FUTURES

CHICAGO, Nov. 24—(AP)—Wheat fell back on the Board of Trade Monday following snow and rain over much of the southwestern drought area.

Other cereals were off with wheat at the start, but they reversed themselves in the second hour of trading. All the loss was regained and in some cases gains substituted. This was particularly true of corn.

Wheat at noon was ½-⅞ lower, December $2.32⅞, corn ¼-⅝ higher, December $1.64¼, oats ⅜ lower to ¼ higher, December 83⅛, soybeans ¼ to 2 cents higher, September $3.03½, and lard 5 to 10 cents a hundred pounds higher, December $10.30.

Fire Chief Warns Heater Needs Flue

Fire Chief Talmer Wise Monday repeated a warning against hot water natural gas heaters which do not have flues.

"No matter how often we emphasize the danger of having heaters without flues," he said, "there are many homes that still have them.

"It can lead to great damage and loss of life."

Circleville Fire Department Saturday was called at 5:05 p. m. to the home of Ray Reichelderfer, 936 S. Washington St., to investigate fumes leaking from a hot water tank.

Wise said the tank did not have a flue.

Driver Almost Felled By Gas

A driver of an auto-hauler tractor trailer outfit was almost overcome by carbon monoxide early Monday as he napped in his truck cab with the engine running.

He was identified by Deputy Walter Richards as Billy Barbour, 28, of Huntington, W. Va.

Barbour and another trucker pulled from the road at Routes 22 and 104 at about midnight Sunday to take naps. They were returning north with empty rigs.

At about 7 a. m. Monday, Barbour's partner awoke, went over to his friend's truck and opened the door. Barbour fell out.

The driver was not unconscious, but was seemingly partially paralyzed, Richards said. He refused to seek treatment, but recovered shortly afterward.

Look At Execution Of Spies Sought

NEW YORK, Nov. 24 — (AP)—"Countless" persons have expressed the desire to see the scheduled execution of convicted atom spies Ethel and Julius Rosenberg.

Rosenberg, 34, and his wife, 36, were convicted March 29, 1951, of passing atomic secrets to a Russian spy ring. Their execution date has been set for the week of Jan. 12. Only a pardon by President Truman will save them from the electric chair. U. S. Marshal William A. Carroll said he has had "countless letters and telephone calls" from persons all over the country who want to witness the executions.

Cleveland Named As Tax Center

WASHINGTON, Nov. 24 — (AP)—Cleveland will be headquarters of a new Ohio internal revenue district, Secretary of the Treasury John W. Snyder has announced.

Under the new setup, the district commissioner in Cleveland will supervise assistants in Cincinnati, Toledo, Columbus and Cleveland. Under the former plan, Ohio was divided into four collection districts. The new officials will be selected by civil service.

Look At Execution Of Spies Sought

NEW YORK, Nov. 24 — (AP)—"Countless" persons have expressed the desire to see the scheduled execution of convicted atom spies Ethel and Julius Rosenberg.

Rosenberg, 34, and his wife, 36, were convicted March 29, 1951, of passing atomic secrets to a Russian spy ring. Their execution date has been set for the week of Jan. 12. Only a pardon by President Truman will save them from the electric chair. U. S. Marshal William A. Carroll said he has had "countless letters and telephone calls" from persons all over the country who want to witness the executions.

Cleveland Named As Tax Center

WASHINGTON, Nov. 24 — (AP)—Cleveland will be headquarters of a new Ohio internal revenue district, Secretary of the Treasury John W. Snyder has announced.

Under the new setup, the district commissioner in Cleveland will supervise assistants in Cincinnati, Toledo, Columbus and Cleveland. Under the former plan, Ohio was divided into four collection districts. The new officials will be selected by civil service.

Woman, 100, Dies

NEW YORK, Nov. 24—(AP)—Mrs. Susanna Perry Faulkner, who was still dancing the samba on her 97th birthday as one of the gayer members of New York's cafe society, died Sunday at the age of 100.

PUCO OKs A-Plant Railway Station

COLUMBUS, Nov. 24 — (AP)—The Public Utilities Commission of Ohio has authorized establishment of a railroad station at the site of the new atomic energy plant being built in Pike County, and set emergency rates for hauling construction materials.

Two railroads, the Norfolk & Western and Chesapeake and Ohio, will haul crushed rock, gravel and sand to Teays, the new station, from Portsmouth, Sargents, Chillicothe, Circleville, Columbus, Marion and Carey.

Holstein Cow Drops 4 Calves

MIDDLETOWN, N. Y., Nov. 24—(AP)—A rare event in dairying took place here over the weekend: a Holstein cow gave birth to four calves.

Mother and calves—three heifers and a bull—were doing fine, reported their owner, dairy farmer Joseph Mulhair of nearby Crystal Run. Veterinarians said such multiple births were few.

Sister Kenny III

SYDNEY, Australia, Nov. 24—(AP)—Sister Elizabeth Kenny, 66, internationally known for her treatment of poliomyelitis, is in critically ill condition in her mountain home in Toowoomba, Queensland.

One survey reports 44 elements have been found in sea water.

Probers Flooded With Literature

WASHINGTON, Nov. 24 — (AP)—A flood of literature alleged to be obscene has deluged the offices of a special House committee investigating public sales of objectionable reading matter.

Chairman Gathings (D-Ark) said that "the people are demanding that something be done to clean up this situation. It is shocking to see how much obscene and lewd printed matter is available to anyone at a small price in almost any corner store in the country. It is a serious menace to the morals of our youth."

Dad Makes Sure Kid Knows Him

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 24 — (AP)—Capt. Pete J. Messina, just back from a 14-month tour of Army duty in Korea, solved the problem of not having his youngsters forget their daddy.

While he was away Messina sent his wife one or two reels of home movies a month in which he was the principal actor. When he returned home and entered the house his daughters, Rosalie, 4, and Elizabeth Ann, 3, rushed up with open arms crying:

"This is our daddy!"

Appeal Booked

NEW YORK, Nov. 24—(AP)—Michael Danna, 10-year-old poster boy for the 1952-53 National Muscular Dystrophy Appeal, will meet Mrs. Truman in the White House Wednesday to mark the official opening of the fund campaign.

PRESIDENT-ELECT Dwight Eisenhower picked two more aides for top positions in his forthcoming administration — Cleveland industrialist George M. Humphrey (right) as secretary of the treasury, and Harold Stassen to be director of the Mutual Security agency. Humphrey, 62, is chairman of the board of the M. A. Hanna Co., a Great Lakes shipping, mining and investment company. Stassen, long-time contender for the GOP presidential nomination, is president of the University of Pennsylvania.

British Envoy Dies

CAMBRIDGE, England, Nov. 24—(AP)—Sir William Henry Clark, former British high commissioner to Canada and South Africa, died Saturday. He was 77.

In 1951 there were 3,833,000 births in the United States.

Water Softening Said Profitable In Farm Homes

Does it pay a farmer to install a water softening system? Pictures ranging from baby's tender skin to the glossy coat of a boy's 4-H calf give visible proof to soft water's advantages.

Here's how the query is summed up:

1. A family of four saves an average of $100 a year by using soft water (water with three grains or more of mineral salts per gallon is considered hard enough to need softening). Soft water service costs range from $33 to $45 annually.

2. Soft water can reduce soap bills 50 to 70 percent.

3. Hot water heaters, iron pipe, heating coils and gas and tractor engine cooling systems last much longer if only soft water passes through them. When there is no "liming up" or scaling, plumbing bills take a nosedive and replacements are less frequent.

• • •

4. FABRICS washed in soft water have 25 percent longer life.

5. Soft water is a big aid to cleanliness and sanitation in the farm home, milkroom and dairy barn.

6. There are many smaller comforts from soft water, such as cleaner clothes, dish water easier to work with, luxurious hair shampoos, pleasanter shaving and ring-free bathtubs.

Research shows the hard water problem is present in 85 percent of this country and Canada.

Not How Much Money Spent But How Well

It's not how much money a farmer spends on crop production, but how he spends it that counts on the profit side, reports J. B Cunningham, University of Illinois farm economist.

Cunningham found that low-income farms spent about as much as high-income farms on crop production, yet there was a difference of as much as $9,537 in net income between them.

He based his conclusions on an accounting study of record keeping farms in central and northern Illinois The farms were of medium size on soils of medium productivity.

Production costs on high-income farms specializing on grain and livestock were only $477 more than those on low-earning farms, yet the big-earning farms had a net return of $8,730, whereas the low-income farms went into the red by $406.

In hog farming, production costs averaged only $41 more on high income farms than on low, but there was a difference in net income between them. In dairying, production costs were only $1,540 more on high earning farms, while the net return was $9,439 greater.

• • •

CUNNINGHAM reported the high income farms spent from one-fourth to one-half more for fertilizer and lime than did the low-earning farms. That made a big difference in yields per acre of grain, beef, pork and dairy products.

Labor was used more effectively on the high-earning farms, because each worker produced from three fourths to one and one-half again as much as the worker on the low-income farm.

"The high income farms," he said, "were more productive and yielded higher net returns, not because they spent more but because they spent it where it would do the most good."

HONOR BRAILLE, BENEFACTOR OF ALL WHO CANNOT SEE

Reading through touch, world's literature is opened to the blind.

By JOHN F. SEMBOWER
Central Press Correspondent

CHICAGO—This story of the world-wide celebration of the 100th anniversary of one of the greatest inventions never will be read by the most active participants in the observance—not in this form, at least.

If it is punched out, however, in the ingenious raised dots of the alphabet devised by Louis Braille, the reading audience will be expanded to include the thousands of blind persons for whom the world of literature and learning was opened in the mid-Nineteenth Century by the French inventor.

Leaders of 20 organizations converged upon this city to hail what has happened to help the blind since Braille made practical the system of touch reading and writing originally suggested in 1825 by Capt. Charles Barbier, a young French cavalry officer.

Before blind persons were able to read and write in their own medium, their leaders pointed out, most of them were fated to be beggars. Now Dr. S. B. Bruson, a physicist at the Argonne Atomic Energy Research Center here and a member of the Braille centennial committee, is doing work that is typical of the big jobs held down by many of the sightless.

• • •

THE NATIONAL Institute for the Blind now has electrically driven presses which can print 6,000 pages of Braille an hour, and this is a boon for the estimated 300,000 blind persons in the United States as well as hundreds of thousands in other countries.

It marks a great advance in recent years over the production in 1877-90 of the first complete copy of the Bible in Braille. Frank Hall, an American inventor of a stereotype machine for punching out Braille, produced every individual character in the 39 volumes.

The blind people honoring Braille on the hundredth anniversary of his death wish that the Frenchman could have witnessed the great development of his system, Dr. Burson explains. Although he perfected the technique in 1829, it was not given official recognition until two years after his death.

Now Braille has been adapted even to the Chinese language, and a magazine is published in Esperanto, the proposed international language.

There have been many other systems, and 23 methods of embossed printing were in existence when Braille tackled the problem. One of them, invented by Dr. William Moon of Brighton, England, uses characters retaining the conventional Roman alphabet outlines, and is preferred for reading by many who become blind in adult life.

• • •

HOWEVER, the groups honoring Braille point out that it is the versatility of his system which makes it so popular. More than 500,000 volumes and pamphlets have been printed in the Moon system, but it is not practical for the individual blind person to write with it.

Using a blunt awl and a stereotype, blind people can easily write notes and letters as well as longer articles. In composing it is necessary to write from right to left so that the paper can be turned over and read conventionally from left to right, but it is a knack that is quickly mastered, say the Braille advocates.

Braille hit upon the idea of using blocks of six dots for each of his letters. Sixty-three varying combinations are possible, and this nicely takes care of the 26 letters in the alphabet, the numerals, and many special characters including punctuation marks and even the seven notes of the musical scale.

The blind persons participating in the celebration here put on a convincing show of great proficiency in rapid reading. Braille decks were used by expert bridge and canasta players, and chess and domino sets were featured.

Ingenious mathematical devices enable the blind to take shortcuts with Braille so that they can run circles around the ordinary calculators in speed competitions.

However, Dr. Burson and his associates are proudest of the new Braille literature being compiled steadily in the professional and technical fields. He predicts that it will open the last frontiers of employment to the blind.

War Gives A Man Some Sense; More Tolerant When He Returns

By HAL BOYLE

CAMP KILMER, N. J.—(AP)—The American soldier is known to have a wide heart. He proved it here in an unusual way.

They passed the hat recently among some 25,000 or more troops here during a United Fund campaign. The money solicited was for 23 charities in nine neighboring communities of this sprawling 15,000-acre camp.

Some 20,000 soldiers kicked in for a total of $9,350. The amounts given ranged from a few pennies to $20.

The result has made the camp commander rather proud. It left some of the local citizens feeling rather ashamed.

The reason: Most of the soldiers who contributed to the drive were in transit, men just entering the service or men leaving it. Only a handful have any permanent connection here. Yet the camp increased its contributions 650 per cent over a year ago, while the citizens who live in the communities lagged behind their goal.

"The average soldier stays here only an average of six days," commented Brig. Gen. Charles F. Craig, who regards the record troop contributions as proof that "Army men want to become part of whatever community they are stationed in, and help serve its needs."

And industrialist Robert Wood Johnson, chairman of the board of Johnson & Johnson, observed:

"Our armed forces have demonstrated a responsibility to the community that should serve as an example to those who take too much for granted."

A local newspaper, pointing at the generosity of these strangers in uniform, asked its readers:

"What kind of citizens are we?"

Why should soldiers passing through a camp contribute so heavily to a charity drive in a community in which they themselves had no roots? I came over to find out.

"Why don't you ask one of the men back from overseas:" said WAC Lt. Lola M. Irelan of Norfolk, Va. "It was the men just returned from duty abroad who seemed to give the most."

So I put the question to Sgt. William Skerry, 25, of Brooklyn, N. Y., who received a Bronze Star and two Purple Hearts during nearly 18 months in Korea.

"The main reason the fellows gave is because they figured the money might help some kid who needed it," he said. "The way most of us feel is that we saw the suffering of the Korean people, particularly the kids, and we don't want it to happen here.

"Those of us lucky enough to have a $5 bill were glad to toss it in. We like to feel we belong.

"War gives a man some sense. He is more tolerant when he comes back, and he thinks about things more."

Sgt. Skerry, former machine gunner, left combat after being wounded by 13 shell fragments. He has applied for training to become an officer.

"If I ever get to be a lieutenant," he said, smiling, "it'll be just my luck to draw a platoon in Korea. But I'll take it."

In Britain, the automobile windshield is called a windscreen.

AFTER SERVING 12 YEARS in prison for a crime he insisted he did not commit, Louis Hoffner jubilantly waves his arms as he is ordered released by Judge Peter Farrell in a Queens, N.Y. court room. He was sentenced to life imprisonment in the slaying of a bartender. His claims of innocence attracted the attention of a New York detective, newsman and a lawyer, who have aided him. (International Exclusive)

Pupils Protest Teacher Change

TEL AVIV (AP) — When their eighth grade teacher was transferred to another class recently, his 50 pupils, all about 14, started a minor revolution that lasted four days before peace was restored.

The pupils left their class, marched through corridors, upset tables and finally organized a demonstration aided by their parents. Protests were made to educational authorities who relented and restored their teacher, Ben Moshe.

"You see, he was so good to us," one boy said. "He never went on with a lesson as long as one of us didn't understand properly."

UN Probe Eyed

NEW YORK, Nov. 24—(AP)—The U. S. Senate internal security subcommittee will hold its next public hearing here Dec. 1 in a continuing probe of American citizens employed by the United Nations.

In 1860, Abraham Lincoln won the presidency without leaving his home state of Illinois to campaign.

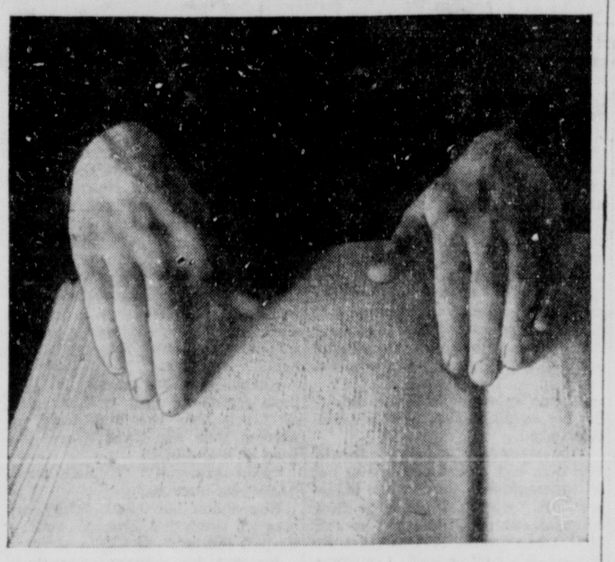
HONOR BRAILLE, BENEFACTOR OF ALL WHO CANNOT SEE



Reading through touch, world's literature is opened to the blind.

By JOHN F. SEMBOWER
Central Press Correspondent

CHICAGO—This story of the world-wide celebration of the 100th anniversary of one of the greatest inventions never will be read by the most active participants in the observance—not in this form, at least.

If it is punched out, however, in the ingenious raised dots of the alphabet devised by Louis Braille, the reading audience will be expanded to include the thousands of blind persons for whom the world of literature and learning was opened in the mid-Nineteenth Century by the French inventor.

Leaders of 20 organizations converged upon this city to hail what has happened to help the blind since Braille made practical the system of touch reading and writing originally suggested in 1825 by Capt. Charles Barbier, a young French cavalry officer.

Before blind persons were able to read and write in their own medium, their leaders pointed out, most of them were fated to be beggars. Now Dr. S. B. Bruson, a physicist at the Argonne Atomic Energy Research Center here and a member of the Braille centennial committee, is doing work that is typical of the big jobs held down by many of the sightless.

* * *

THE NATIONAL Institute for the Blind now has electrically driven presses which can print 6,000 pages of Braille an hour, and this is a boon for the estimated 300,000 blind persons in the United States as well as hundreds of thousands in other countries.

It marks a great advance in recent years over the production in 1877-90 of the first complete copy of the Bible in Braille. Frank Hall, an American inventor of a stereotype machine for punching out Braille, produced every individual character in the 39 volumes.

The blind people honoring Braille on the hundredth anniversary of his death wish that the Frenchman could have witnessed the great development of his system, Dr. Burson explains. Although he perfected the technique in 1829, it was not given official recognition until two years after his death.

Now Braille has been adapted even to the Chinese language, and a magazine is published in Esperanto, the proposed international language.

There have been many other systems, and 23 methods of embossed printing were in existence when Braille tackled the problem. One of them, invented by Dr. William Moon of Brighton, England, uses characters retaining the conventional Roman alphabet outlines, and is preferred for reading by many who become blind in adult life.

* * *

HOWEVER, the groups honoring Braille point out that it is the versatility of his system which makes it so popular. More than 500,000 volumes and pamphlets have been printed in the Moon system, but it is not practical for the individual blind person to write with it.

Using a blunt awl and a stereotype, blind people can easily write notes and letters as well as longer articles. In composing it is necessary to write from right to left so that the paper can be turned over and read conventionally from left to right, but it is a knack that is quickly mastered, say the Braille advocates.

Braille hit upon the idea of using blocks of six dots for each of his letters. Sixty-three varying combinations are possible, and this nicely takes care of the 26 letters in the alphabet, the numerals, and many special characters including punctuation marks and even the seven notes of the musical scale.

The blind persons participating in the celebration here put on a convincing show of great proficiency in rapid reading. Braille decks were used by expert bridge and canasta players, and chess and domino sets were featured.

Ingenious mathematical devices enable the blind to take shortcuts with Braille so that they can run circles around the ordinary calculators in speed competitions.

However, Dr. Burson and his associates are proudest of the new Braille literature being compiled steadily in the professional and technical fields. He predicts that it will open the last frontiers of employment to the blind.

War Gives A Man Some Sense; More Tolerant When He Returns

By HAL BOYLE

CAMP KILMER, N. J.—(AP)—The American soldier is known to have a wide heart. He proved it here in an unusual way.

They passed the hat recently among some 25,000 or more troops here during a United Fund campaign. The money solicited was for 23 charities in nine neighboring communities of this sprawling 15,000-acre camp.

Some 20,000 soldiers kicked in for a total of $9,350. The amounts given ranged from a few pennies to $20.

The result has made the camp commander rather proud. It left some of the local citizens feeling rather ashamed.

The reason: Most of the soldiers who contributed to the drive were in transit, men just entering the service or men leaving it. Only a handful have any permanent connection here. Yet the camp increased its contributions 650 per cent over a year ago, while the citizens who live in the communities lagged behind their goal.

"The average soldier stays here only an average of six days," commented Brig. Gen. Charles F. Craig, who regards the record troop contributions as proof that "Army men want to become part of whatever community they are stationed in, and help serve its needs."

And industrialist Robert Wood Johnson, chairman of the board of Johnson & Johnson, observed:

"Our armed forces have demonstrated a responsibility to the community that should serve as an example to those who take too much for granted."

A local newspaper, pointing at the generosity of these strangers in uniform, asked its readers:

"What kind of citizens are we?"

Why should soldiers passing through a camp contribute so heavily to a charity drive in a community in which they themselves had no roots? I came over to find out.

"Why don't you ask one of the men back from overseas:" said WAC Lt. Lola M. Irelan of Norfolk, Va. "It was the men just returned from duty abroad who seemed to give the most."

So I put the question to Sgt. William Skerry, 25, of Brooklyn, N. Y., who received a Bronze Star and two Purple Hearts during nearly 18 months in Korea.

"The main reason the fellows gave is because they figured the money might help some kid who needed it," he said. "The way most of us feel is that we saw the suffering of the Korean people, particularly the kids, and we don't want it to happen here.

"Those of us lucky enough to have a $5 bill were glad to toss it in. We like to feel we belong.

"War gives a man some sense. He is more tolerant when he comes back, and he thinks about things more."

Sgt. Skerry, former machine gunner, left combat after being wounded by 13 shell fragments. He has applied for training to become an officer.

"If I ever get to be a lieutenant," he said, smiling, "it'll be just my luck to draw a platoon in Korea. But I'll take it."

In Britain, the automobile windshield is called a windscreen.

AFTER SERVING 12 YEARS in prison for a crime he insisted he did not commit, Louis Hoffner jubilantly waves his arms as he is ordered released by Judge Peter Farrell in a Queens, N.Y. court room. He was sentenced to life imprisonment in the slaying of a bartender. His claims of innocence attracted the attention of a New York detective, newsman and a lawyer, who have aided him. (International Exclusive)

Pupils Protest Teacher Change

TEL AVIV (AP) — When their eighth grade teacher was transferred to another class recently, his 50 pupils, all about 14, started a minor revolution that lasted four days before peace was restored.

The pupils left their class, marched through corridors, upset tables and finally organized a demonstration aided by their parents. Protests were made to educational authorities who relented and restored their teacher, Ben Moshe.

"You see, he was so good to us," one boy said. "He never went on with a lesson as long as one of us didn't understand properly."

BRIGHTER DAYS AHEAD

THE AGRICULTURAL ECONOMY of several important areas throughout the nation have been given a serious setback by a drouth which has continued through the late Summer and Fall months. Less than an inch of rain was recorded in western Kansas during the seeding of the Winter wheat crop.

The entire state of Kansas has been menaced by grass fires, water shortages are plaguing some communities, and the entire situation is one to cause concern.

But the people of Kansas and other states which are equally hard hit by drouth have gone through similar experiences in the past, and will not be discouraged by a prospect which is not entirely pleasing. The present situation is reported to be less grave than that of the so-called dust bowl period, during which the drouth lasted for years.

Those who stuck it out then on the parched plains came through victorious to one of the brightest periods in the West's history.

NEW TREND

IT IS REPORTED UNIONS are secretly starting to buy corporation common stocks. According to the Wall Street Journal, local unions particularly have been investing in mutual fund shares as a means of providing higher income and hedging against inflation.

The Journal anticipates that national unions, with greater funds to work with, will soon begin to emulate the locals. Most union funds heretofore have gone into government bonds.

Though union officials are reluctant to have this new trend generally known, the practice may prove a stabilizing factor in the American economy. Justifiably the unions have been mainly investing in mutual shares instead of stocks of one company

Whether union funds, representing pension surpluses or revenue from dues, get into corporation financing directly or indirectly, the act of investing gives unions a tangible stake in American capitalism. There have been instances in the past where unions have bought so heavily into enterprises as to become the controlling factor.

In such event, however, they shed their union roles and become capitalistic entrepreneurs.

George E. Sokolsky's

These Days

The Earl of Jowitt, who is about to publish a book in defense of Alger Hiss, has already produced a preliminary article on the subject which gives his point of view. He almost reminds me of a feminine Hissite who came up with the theory that Alger Hiss was all the time an agent for our government, who had to take the rap so as not to give away his superiors!

The Earl battles with a firmer pen if not with greater logic. First of all, he sets out to give the impression, in polite but nonetheless sure language, that Chambers is mad. He does not say so, for in England that would undoubtedly be libel per se, as the Earl is only a lawyer and not a psychiatrist.

Nevertheless, as one reads what the Earl has to say, it is difficult to believe that he does not desire to convince that Chambers is mad. He says:

"But Mr. Chambers has no misgivings: He is right—and all who differ from him are wrong. He sees himself as the modern St. George, clad in shining armour and engaged in deadly combat with the dragon of Communism. As for the case, it is not a mere case in which an individual called Chambers is testifying against an individual called Hiss. It is a 'tragedy of history.' The generation is on trial and Chambers is a witness to God's Grace. The contest is a contest between the forces of good (as represented by Chambers) and the forces of evil (as represented by Hiss); and what is involved in the contest is the soul of the American people—indeed of the whole free world."

How wrong is Chambers? There is something of the devil in any man who sells out his own country. Chambers did it, repented and tried to make amends. The greatest cost of this psychological process is the acknowledgment of a wasted self.

Hiss, equally guilty, if not more so, proudly continues to deny what he knows to be true; is wholly unrepentent, makes no amends.

Suppose every word that Chambers said of Hiss were untrue, it would be possible to reconstruct the Hiss story from what we now know of the Harold Ware cell in Washington, its infiltration into the A.A.A. and the Nye and La Follette committees. Earl Jowitt is moving into a mare's nest, for, a lawyer, he deals only with the record before him. But the public will deal with the whole record, much of which has been unavailable because the Administration prevented its use. What the Earl is going to do, when he comes here to lecture, as I am told he intends to do in grand form, is that he will stimulate a Congressional demand for the whole record.

The Earl's article, from which I quote, raises questions which for most Americans have been answered, but the gist of this learned jurist's analysis of the subject is an ad hominem attack on Chambers, not only to establish that he is mad but that it is a form of congenital madness. That was tried during the Hiss trials by the psychiatrist, Dr. Carl A. L. Binger, with sad results for Binger.

DIET AND HEALTH

The First Day of Life Holds The Most Hazards for Infants

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

"IT was as natural as breathing!" we often say. Yet the problem of breathing is one of the greatest hazards to life before we are a day old.

Modern medical science has reduced the number of early deaths until man's normal span of life has approached seventy. None of the hazards at various stages of life, however, are more threatening than those of the infant's first day. In fact, if the death rate for the first day were to continue throughout life, the average life span of man would come to only about three months.

Mortality Rate

While mortality from contagious and other diseases has dropped very greatly, the mortality rate on the first day of life has not decreased too substantially in the past generation. About one out of every ninety-three babies born now dies the first day.

One of the top reasons for these deaths, as pointed out by Pathologist Dr. Edith Potter, is asphyxia from lack of oxygen.

As long as the baby is growing in his mother's womb, he has no difficulty because the mother supplies all his oxygen requirements. Upon birth, however, the baby has to take care of his own oxygen needs by breathing.

Lack of oxygen is responsible for sixty per cent of the deaths during the first hours of life, it is believed.

Sometimes the placenta, a temporary organ linking the baby to the mother's womb, becomes detached before the baby is born. This shuts off the oxygen supply to the baby.

Damaging Effects

Anesthetics and drugs given to ease the mother may also have an effect on the baby, causing severe damage. Doctors know that the use of anesthetics should not be overdone. It is well to relieve the mother's pains, but not at the expense of a baby's life.

Hospitals are becoming more and more alert to this problem of asphyxia. They are supplying heated cribs with oxygen available for the newborns who have difficulty breathing on their own.

There are also specially constructed resuscitators — devices to help infants start breathing successfully when they seem unable to do so by themselves. These are very effective in saving the lives of many infants who might otherwise have died.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

F. A. M.: My girl, seven, is approximately 10 pounds overweight. Is it advisable to put such a young child on a diet?

Answer: It is not advisable for children to reduce until they have reached their full growth. However, the diet should contain an abundance of fruits, vegetables and milk, with smaller amounts of starches and sugars. In this way, the child will receive the necessary foods for maintaining health, but will not put on excessive weight.

FORBIDDEN RIVER

by AL CODY

Copyright, 1952, by Al Cody. Distributed by King Features Syndicate.

CHAPTER THIRTY-THRE...

THE WATER ran swiftly, deep with a glassy surface, marred by the jumble of debris. That wreckage might give Rawls and Kathleen a chance. In the confusion and with the multiplicity of objects that dotted the surface, it was long odds if anyone on shore had seen them. Here came something apt to their need—a big, upholstered lounging chair from one of the saloons, a touch of down-river elegance, floating upside down.

It wasn't hard to reach and duck beneath it, to get a hold on the ornate buttons that fastened the tufted stuffing, and cling there. Kathleen was relaxed as if partly dazed, and when they didn't struggle, it took only a little effort to keep afloat.

There was an air space under the chair above the water, room enough where the arm curved for Rawls to look out at the side. With his vision restricted, he could get only a confused glimpse of the shore, but the current was carrying them toward it. Salvation and disaster.

The balance between the two was thin. The Sioux had swarmed along the shore for weeks, keeping out of sight but having no particular difficulty in following as fast as the boats traveled. Today they had been waiting in anticipation of the booty promised when the Astrid should stop for the night. Now, all need for concealment gone, they were eager for any fragment of treasure that might be washed within their reach.

Rawls kicked, striving to fight the strong tug of the current and keep their ungainly shelter farther out, but the big chair was growing logy with water, as impossible of management as a ship without a rudder. It wouldn't be long before it would settle to the bottom, but meanwhile it would take its own course.

It hit a jutting boulder with a dull thud, caught and hung, tipping partly up on one side, down on the other. Under them the water was shallow enough to crouch on the bottom, heads above the current, and with the chair tipped the view was wider, though scarcely better. It revealed a score of Indians along the shore, some wading out to grab at such articles as looked inviting, none of them more than a stone's throw away.

A hoarse shout broke the uncanny silence that had followed the first disaster. Not far upstream a man struggled for footing as the piece of wreckage to which he had been clinging swept to where the water shallowed. He stood up, floundering like an ungainly, crippled bird, all but losing his footing in the pull of the current. That he was hurt and dazed was apparent. That it was Mark Whirter was harder to believe, for he looked a crimson scarecrow.

The explosion had torn most of the clothes off Whirter, leaving him clad only in his underwear—a long red garment now torn and flapping. But he had survived this far, and now, shouting again, he splashed through the shallow water toward the beach.

A score of feet out, he halted uncertainly, passing a hand dazedly across his eyes. It was his final gesture, for one of the warriors hurled a tomahawk. Almost before it had struck, he rushed out to grab his victim and drag him toward the shore.

Kathleen gasped and turned her head away, and Rawls, feeling sick, realized that the shock was passing from her mind—the original shock. This one was almost as bad. Most of the Indians clustered about the object on the sand, then drew back as the victorious warrior stood up with his trophy and shook it triumphantly. He gobbled a few words at another man who had just come up and was watching with disapproval. Jenkyn.

Rawls understood the language.

"Here is his hair," the Sioux shouted at Jenkyn. "The man in red!"

It was apparent that the outlaw did not speak Indian. Another man translated.

Understanding came to Rawls. His own red jacket was gone, but if the freakish nature of the explosion had torn it off him as it flung him far out into the river, so had that same prank of the blast revealed Whirter in red. Confirmation was in Jenkyn's reply.

"Yeah, you red sons of Belial killed him, all right. But you got the wrong feller. Seems like his own trap caught him, wearin' red underwear the way he did. Though I reckon it don't make much diff'rence now."

It required more explanation before they understood. So far as the hair hunter was concerned, a trophy was a trophy, but some of the others were disgruntled. Only now were they beginning to realise the full magnitude of what had happened—that guns and whiskey alike were lost, that most of the crew had perished and beyond yielding even a scalp; also any expedition for gain had vanished with the wreckage. All of which left them as losers.

Anger came with knowledge, and part of it was turned against Jenkyn, who they seemed to feel was somehow responsible for the manner in which things had worked out. They had sent him to the Varina in the first place to entice the white men ashore and into their hands, and as the crew had trooped on to the bank a cannon had rained death among them, trained on their place of ambush. They'd given Jenkyn a second chance on his assurances that a mistake had been made, that everything was coming their way. This was the meagre result.

Panic gripped Jenkyn as he sensed their hostility. His words were clearly audible above the suck and gurgle of the current.

"Hold yore hosses, now," he protested, addressing himself to the one warrior who seemed to understand English. "Don't go blamin' me 'cause a boiler busted. You don't figger they aimed to kill themselves, do you? An' if you want booty, and a lot of scalps, you can still get them. There's that other boat, back downriver. Nothin' to hinder going back and getting it. It won't be hard to do, now."

That caught their attention, as he had hoped. The leaders of the expedition, the men they needed to fear during an assault, were gone, dead. Now the Varina could be taken by surprise, and it should be an easy prey, along with all on board, including the women.

"Two of the women are black," he added, knowing the fascination that either black men or women had for most of the Indians, partly because so few of them had ever seen a Negro. "White women, too," he added, "but mighty purty."

They liked the idea when it was explained to them, but there was no rush to put it into execution. The Varina would wait. Meanwhile, as long as daylight lasted, the current was washing wreckage to them, and it was worth looking at.

That was the worst of it, as Rawls calculated. For a couple of warriors, the conference ended, were wading hopefully out to have a look at this chair that had stuck here.

Kathleen looked at Rawls. Her gaze remained calm, with no hint of panic. For the first time he noticed that her right arm hung limp at her side.

"How are you?" he demanded. "Are you hurt badly?"

She shook her head. "Only my arm. I think it's broken. That—doesn't matter."

He ran his fingers over it in quick testing, shook his head in relief.

"I don't think there are any bones broken," he said. Apparently she had taken a hard blow that had numbed it, and it was swelling above the elbow, but it could have been much worse.

"We've got to kick loose and trust to luck," he added, and setting his feet against the boulder, he shoved hard, pushing with his shoulders against the sodden weight of the chair. It hesitated, swung, and was floating again, still above them. The Indians would figure that the current had moved it.

Twice, the swirl of the river tried to shove them toward shore, but working together they managed to push it off and keep going. Then the deeper, swifter current caught them, and for a quarter of a mile they were hurried along. The chair was becoming so waterlogged that it was settling steadily, losing its buoyancy so that clinging to it would no longer hold them up.

"We've got to leave it and trust to luck," Rawls said, his voice booming strange and muffled. Kathleen had one arm over his shoulder, his was about her waist to assist her, and once again he was struck by her steadiness in the face of peril. She'd do to ride this or any other river with!

For a second time, with a soft jar, the chair struck an obstruction, tried to settle lower. They crawled from beneath it, heads cautiously above the water, then Rawls straightened. Luck was still giving them an occasional nod. They were standing in waist-deep water, but the current had carried them to the south bank of the river, and here it barely moved; trees and brush on shore overhung the bank and had them in its shelter.

A better covert could not have been planned. But they had been in the water nearly an hour, and they were becoming chilled. The sun was setting, going down behind high hills that edged the valley. Rawls waited a while, using eyes and ears, but there was no alien sound, so he boosted Kathleen up on to the bank, then crawled after her.

NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG

news behind the news

By Ray Tucker

WASHINGTON, Nov. 24—The Truman administration's persistent policy of harassing and bulldozing private business and industry can be reversed after Jan. 20 by the simple process of reorganizing an agency with a great capacity for creating economic anxiety and uncertainty —namely, the Federal Trade Commission.

It is this Truman-packed body which now clamps a heavy hand on the nation's economic operations at home and abroad, including the current anti-trust suit against seven American oil firms with investments in the turbulent Middle East.

Besides giving the commission new and broader power than it ever exercized in the past, Truman has used it for purposes of political gain and reprisal.

• • •

MARKING TIME—The Eisenhower victory has already dampened the enthusiasm of FTC's membership for aggressive, anti-business tactics, as it has done in almost every agency of the government.

From Truman down to office boys, officials are marking time, especially the young, noisy, ebullient lawyers so frequently responsible for initiating questionable litigations and investigations.

Nowhere is this "keep your head down" spirit of caution more noticeable than in FTC and the Department of Justice, which carries FTC's complaints into the grand jury rooms and the courts.

But the incoming President will be able to reform FTC within a short time after he takes office, and presumably along more conservative lines. Indeed, he will be able to halt several punitive actions which Attorney General McGranery initiated during the recent campaign under White House and FTC inspiration and insistence.

• • •

DISREGARD FOR LAW—Truman showed his disregard for the law establishing FTC, as well as his anti-business prejudice, when he filled a vacancy last summer with the appointment of John Carson. Although the statute provides that only three members of either major party shall sit on the commission at the same time, Carson was named because of his demonstrated sympathy for the White House program.

Truman violated the spirit of the law by describing Carson as an "Independent." But the fast was that, as former secretary to Senator Couzens of Michigan and a lobbyist for farm cooperatives at Washington, Carson had been an ardent and active supporter of Roosevelt-Truman philosophy for 20 years.

The Senate refused to confirm him for these reasons, giving Eisenhower a vacancy to be filled immediately. Lowell B. Mason, the GOP member, has been bitterly critical of his colleagues, and his term does not expire until Sept. 25, 1956. A Republican majority will become a reality next September, with the end of Commissioner Stephen Spingarns term.

It is also possible that James M. Mead, a Buffalo Democrat and former senator, may quit. He has frequently been mentioned as a possible candidate for governor of New York or for his old post on Capitol Hill.

• • •

REORGANIZATION—The need for an FTC reorganization was evidenced most spectacularly by its campaign publication of its inquiry into the activities of the seven petroleum corporations, and the Department of Justice's subsequent anti-trust action against these companies.

As Secretaries Acheson and Lovett have advised privately, this vote-getting proceeding jeopardizes national defense and foreign relations in an area susceptible to Communist conquest or infiltration—Iran, Iraq, Arabia.

The oil companies have been charged with conducting a cartel in violation of the Sherman Act by the FTC and D of J. Yet almost all the agreements under attack have been made with the knowledge and assistance of State since 1928, when military requirements for foreign oil imports were recognized.

Without this Middle East petroleum, which was sold to European beneficiaries of the Marshall Plan, postwar rationing of gasoline might have been necessary in this country. It is this delicate and sensitive international structure which FTC is trying to destroy, with Truman's consent.

• • •

INVESTMENTS — FTC's political prosecution has had even more far-flung and dangerous repercussions in the field of overseas politics, diplomacy and military operations. It has helped to discredit American businessmen and to endanger their investment everywhere. It explains why private capital is reluctant to reinforce Truman's Point Four program with stockholders' and investors' money.

In his controversy with the British, Mossedegh has cited the FTC report and D of J action as evidence that Anglo-American oil operators are "crooks." It has aroused suspicion against Uncle Sam's own activities in India, Egypt and the Far East generally.

It has given nervous ideas to the Venezuelans, whose relations with American firms had been excellent until recently. It may have hastened Bolivia's action in nationalizing tin mines essental to our miltary buildup.

FTC's members, of course, never dreamed that there would be this worldwide chain reaction. Nor did Truman, whose understanding of the interplay of economic forces at home and abroad is quite elementary.

But to Eisenhower, whose last pre-election assignment was to organize a system of collective security, prevention of these international embarrassments will be an immediate and major problem.

BRIGHTER DAYS AHEAD

THE AGRICULTURAL ECONOMY of several important areas throughout the nation have been given a serious setback by a drouth which has continued through the late Summer and Fall months. Less than an inch of rain was recorded in western Kansas during the seeding of the Winter wheat crop.

The entire state of Kansas has been menaced by grass fires, water shortages are plaguing some communities, and the entire situation is one to cause concern.

But the people of Kansas and other states which are equally hard hit by drouth have gone through similar experiences in the past, and will not be discouraged by a prospect which is not entirely pleasing. The present situation is reported to be less grave than that of the so-called dust bowl period, during which the drouth lasted for years.

Those who stuck it out then on the parched plains came through victorious to one of the brightest periods in the West's history.

NEW TREND

IT IS REPORTED UNIONS are secretly starting to buy corporation common stocks. According to the Wall Street Journal, local unions particularly have been investing in mutual fund shares as a means of providing higher income and hedging against inflation.

The Journal anticipates that national unions, with greater funds to work with, will soon begin to emulate the locals. Most union funds heretofore have gone into government bonds.

Though union officials are reluctant to have this new trend generally known, the practice may prove a stabilizing factor in the American economy. Justifiably the unions have been mainly investing in mutual shares instead of stocks of one company

Whether union funds, representing pension surpluses or revenue from dues, get into corporation financing directly or indirectly, the act of investing gives unions a tangible stake in American capitalism. There have been instances in the past where unions have bought so heavily into enterprises as to become the controlling factor.

In such event, however, they shed their union roles and become capitalistic entrepreneurs.

George E. Sokolsky's

These Days

The Earl of Jowitt, who is about to publish a book in defense of Alger Hiss, has already produced a preliminary article on the subject which gives his point of view. He almost reminds me of a feminine Hissite who came up with the theory that Alger Hiss was all the time an agent for our government, who had to take the rap so as not to give away his superiors!

The Earl battles with a firmer pen if not with greater logic. First of all, he sets out to give the impression, in polite but nonetheless sure language, that Chambers is mad. He does not say so, for in England that would undoubtedly be libel per se, as the Earl is only a lawyer and not a psychiatrist.

Nevertheless, as one reads what the Earl has to say, it is difficult to believe that he does not desire to convince that Chambers is mad. He says:

"But Mr. Chambers has no misgivings: He is right—and all who differ from him are wrong. He sees himself as the modern St. George, clad in shining armour and engaged in deadly combat with the dragon of Communism. As for the case, it is not a mere case in which an individual called Chambers is testifying against an individual called Hiss. It is a 'tragedy of history.' The generation is on trial and Chambers is a witness to God's Grace. The contest is a contest between the forces of good (as represented by Chambers) and the forces of evil (as represented by Hiss); and what is involved in the contest is the soul of the American people—indeed of the whole free world."

How wrong is Chambers? There is something of the devil in any man who sells out his own country. Chambers did it, repented and tried to make amends. The greatest cost of this psychological process is the acknowledgment of a wasted self.

Hiss, equally guilty, if not more so, proudly continues to deny what he knows to be true; is wholly unrepentent, makes no amends.

Suppose every word that Chambers said of Hiss were untrue, it would be possible to reconstruct the Hiss story from what we now know of the Harold Ware cell in Washington, its infiltration into the A.A.A. and the Nye and La Follette committees. Earl Jowitt is moving into a mare's nest, for, a lawyer, he deals only with the record before him. But the public will deal with the whole record, much of which has been unavailable because the Administration prevented its use. What the Earl is going to do, when he comes here to lecture, as I am told he intends to do in grand form, is that he will stimulate a Congressional demand for the whole record.

The Earl's article, from which I quote, raises questions which for most Americans have been answered, but the gist of this learned jurist's analysis of the subject is an ad hominem attack on Chambers, not only to establish that he is mad but that it is a form of congenital madness. That was tried during the Hiss trials by the psychiatrist, Dr. Carl A. L. Binger, with sad results for Binger.

DIET AND HEALTH

The First Day of Life Holds The Most Hazards for Infants

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

"IT was as natural as breathing!" we often say. Yet the problem of breathing is one of the greatest hazards to life before we are a day old.

Modern medical science has reduced the number of early deaths until man's normal span of life has approached seventy. None of the hazards at various stages of life, however, are more threatening than those of the infant's first day. In fact, if the death rate for the first day were to continue throughout life, the average life span of man would come to only about three months.

Mortality Rate

While mortality from contagious and other diseases has dropped very greatly, the mortality rate on the first day of life has not decreased too substantially in the past generation. About one out of every ninety-three babies born now dies the first day.

One of the top reasons for these deaths, as pointed out by Pathologist Dr. Edith Potter, is asphyxia from lack of oxygen.

As long as the baby is growing in his mother's womb, he has no difficulty because the mother supplies all his oxygen requirements. Upon birth, however, the baby has to take care of his own oxygen needs by breathing.

Lack of oxygen is responsible for sixty per cent of the deaths during the first hours of life, it is believed.

Sometimes the placenta, a temporary organ linking the baby to the mother's womb, becomes detached before the baby is born. This shuts off the oxygen supply to the baby.

Damaging Effects

Anesthetics and drugs given to ease the mother may also have an effect on the baby, causing severe damage. Doctors know that the use of anesthetics should not be overdone. It is well to relieve the mother's pains, but not at the expense of a baby's life.

Hospitals are becoming more and more alert to this problem of asphyxia. They are supplying heated cribs with oxygen available for the newborns who have difficulty breathing on their own.

There are also specially constructed resuscitators — devices to help infants start breathing successfully when they seem unable to do so by themselves. These are very effective in saving the lives of many infants who might otherwise have died.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

F. A. M.: My girl, seven, is approximately 10 pounds overweight. Is it advisable to put such a young child on a diet?

Answer: It is not advisable for children to reduce until they have reached their full growth. However, the diet should contain an abundance of fruits, vegetables and milk, with smaller amounts of starches and sugars. In this way, the child will receive the necessary foods for maintaining health, but will not put on excessive weight.

FORBIDDEN RIVER

by AL CODY

Copyright, 1952, by Al Cody. Distributed by King Features Syndicate.

CHAPTER THIRTY-THREE

THE WATER ran swiftly, deep with a glassy surface, marred by the jumble of debris. That wreckage might give Rawls and Kathleen a chance. In the confusion and with the multiplicity of objects that dotted the surface, it was long odds if anyone on shore had seen them. Here came something apt to their need—a big, upholstered lounging chair from one of the saloons, a touch of down-river elegance, floating upside down.

It wasn't hard to reach and duck beneath it, to get a hold on the ornate buttons that fastened the tufted stuffing, and cling there. Kathleen was relaxed as if partly dazed, and when they didn't struggle, it took only a little effort to keep afloat.

There was an air space under the chair above the water, room enough where the arm curved for Rawls to look out at the side. With his vision restricted, he could get only a confused glimpse of the shore, but the current was carrying them toward it. Salvation and disaster.

The balance between the two was thin. The Sioux had swarmed along the shore for weeks, keeping out of sight but having no particular difficulty in following as fast as the boats traveled. Today they had been waiting in anticipation of the booty promised when the Astrid should stop for the night. Now, all need for concealment gone, they were eager for any fragment of treasure that might be washed within their reach.

Rawls kicked, striving to fight the strong tug of the current and keep their ungainly shelter farther out, but the big chair was growing logy with water, as impossible of management as a ship without a rudder. It wouldn't be long before it would settle to the bottom, but meanwhile it would take its own course.

It hit a jutting boulder with a dull thud, caught and hung, tipping partly up on one side, down on the other. Under them the water was shallow enough to crouch on the bottom, heads above the current, and with the chair tipped the view was wider, though scarcely better. It revealed a score of Indians along the shore, some wading out to grab at such articles as looked inviting, none of them more than a stone's throw away.

A hoarse shout broke the uncanny silence that had followed the first disaster. Not far upstream a man struggled for footing as the piece of wreckage to which he had been clinging swept to where the water shallowed. He stood up, floundering like an ungainly, crippled bird, all but losing his footing in the pull of the current. That he was hurt and dazed was apparent. That it was Mark Whirter was harder to believe, for he looked a crimson scarecrow.

The explosion had torn most of the clothes off Whirter, leaving him clad only in his underwear—a long red garment now torn and flapping. But he had survived this far, and now, shouting again, he splashed through the shallow water toward the beach.

A score of feet out, he halted uncertainly, passing a hand dazedly across his eyes. It was his final gesture, for one of the warriors hurled a tomahawk. Almost before it had struck, he rushed out to grab his victim and drag him toward the shore.

Kathleen gasped and turned her head away, and Rawls, feeling sick, realized that the shock was passing from her mind—the original shock. This one was almost as bad. Most of the Indians clustered about the object on the sand, then drew back as the victorious warrior stood up with his trophy and shook it triumphantly. He gobbled a few words at another man who had just come up and was watching with disapproval. Jenkyn.

Rawls understood the language.

"Here is his hair," the Sioux shouted at Jenkyn. "The man in red!"

It was apparent that the outlaw did not speak Indian. Another man translated.

Understanding came to Rawls. His own red jacket was gone, but if the freakish nature of the explosion had torn it off him as it flung him far out into the river, so had that same prank of the blast revealed Whirter in red. Confirmation was in Jenkyn's reply.

"Yeah, you red sons of Belial killed him, all right. But you got the wrong feller. Seems like his own trap caught him, wearin' red underwear the way he did. Though I reckon it don't make much diff'rence now."

It required more explanation before they understood. So far as the hair hunter was concerned, a trophy was a trophy, but some of the others were disgruntled. Only now were they beginning to realize the full magnitude of what had happened—that guns and whiskey alike were lost, that most of the crew had perished and beyond yielding even a scalp; also any expedition for gain had vanished with the wreckage. All of which left them as losers.

Anger came with knowledge, and part of it was turned against Jenkyn, who they seemed to feel was somehow responsible for the manner in which things had worked out. They had sent him to the Varina in the first place to entice the white men ashore and into their hands, and as the crew had trooped on to the bank a cannon had rained death among them, trained on their place of ambush. They'd given Jenkyn a second chance on his assurances that a mistake had been made, that everything was coming their way. This was the meagre result.

Panic gripped Jenkyn as he sensed their hostility. His words were clearly audible above the suck and gurgle of the current.

"Hold yore hosses, now," he protested, addressing himself to the one warrior who seemed to understand English. "Don't go blamin' me 'cause a boiler busted. You don't figger they aimed to kill themselves, do you? An' if you want booty, and a lot of scalps, you can still get them. There's that other boat, back downriver. Nothin' to hinder going back and getting it. It won't be hard to do, now."

That caught their attention, as he had hoped. The leaders of the expedition, the men they needed to fear during an assault, were gone, dead. Now the Varina could be taken by surprise, and it should be an easy prey, along with all on board, including the women.

"Two of the women are black," he added, knowing the fascination that either black men or women had for most of the Indians, partly because so few of them had ever seen a Negro. "White women, too," he added, "but mighty purty."

They liked the idea when it was explained to them, but there was no rush to put it into execution. The Varina would wait. Meanwhile, as long as daylight lasted, the current was washing wreckage to them, and it was worth looking at.

That was the worst of it, as Rawls calculated. For a couple of warriors, the conference ended, were wading hopefully out to have a look at this chair that had stuck here.

Kathleen looked at Rawls. Her gaze remained calm, with no hint of panic. For the first time he noticed that her right arm hung limp at her side.

"How are you?" he demanded. "Are you hurt badly?"

She shook her head. "Only my arm. I think it's broken. That—doesn't matter."

He ran his fingers over it in quick testing, shook his head in relief.

"I don't think there are any bones broken," he said. Apparently she had taken a hard blow that had numbed it, and it was swelling above the elbow, but it could have been much worse.

"We've got to kick loose and trust to luck," he added, and setting his feet against the boulder, he shoved hard, pushing with his shoulders against the sodden weight of the chair. It hesitated, swung, and was floating again, still above them. The Indians would figure that the current had moved it.

Twice, the swirl of the river tried to shove them toward shore, but working together they managed to push it off and keep going. Then the deeper, swifter current caught them, and for a quarter of a mile they were hurried along. The chair was becoming so waterlogged that it was settling steadily, losing its buoyancy so that clinging to it would no longer hold them up.

"We've got to leave it and trust to luck," Rawls said, his voice booming strange and muffled. Kathleen had one arm over his shoulder, his was about her waist to assist her, and once again he was struck by her steadiness in the face of peril. She'd do to ride this or any other river with!

For a second time, with a soft jar, the chair struck an obstruction, tried to settle lower. They crawled from beneath it, heads cautiously above the water, then Rawls straightened. Luck was still giving them an occasional nod. They were standing in waist-deep water, but the current had carried them to the south bank of the river, and here it barely moved; trees and brush on shore overhung the bank and had them in its shelter.

A better covert could not have been planned. But they had been in the water nearly an hour, and they were becoming chilled. The sun was setting, going down behind high hills that edged the valley. Rawls waited a while, using eyes and ears, but there was no alien sound, so he boosted Kathleen up on to the bank, then crawled after her.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 24—The Truman administration's persistent policy of harassing and bulldozing private business and industry can be reversed after Jan. 20 by the simple process of reorganizing an agency with a great capacity for creating economic anxiety and uncertainty —namely, the Federal Trade Commission.

It is this Truman-packed body which now clamps a heavy hand on the nation's economic operations at home and abroad, including the current anti - trust suit against seven American oil firms with investments in the turbulent Middle East.

Besides giving the commission new and broader power than it ever exercized in the past, Truman has used it for purposes of political gain and reprisal.

• • •

MARKING TIME—The Eisenhower victory has already dampened the enthusiasm of FTC's membership for aggressive, anti-business tactics, as it has done in almost every agency of the government.

From Truman down to office boys, officials are marking time, especially the young, noisy, ebullient lawyers so frequently responsible for initiating questionable litigations and investigations.

Nowhere is this "keep your head down" spirit of caution more noticeable than in FTC and the Department of Justice, which carries FTC's complaints into the grand jury rooms and the courts.

But the incoming President will be able to reform FTC within a short time after he takes office, and presumably along more conservative lines. Indeed, he will be able to halt several punitive actions which Attorney General McGranery initiated during the recent campaign under White House and FTC inspiration and insistence.

• • •

DISREGARD FOR LAW—Truman showed his disregard for the law establishing FTC, as well as his anti-business prejudice, when he filled a vacancy last summer with the appointment of John Carson. Although the statute provides that only three members of either major party shall sit on the commission at the same time, Carson was named because of his demonstrated sympathy for the White House program.

Truman violated the spirit of the law by describing Carson as an "Independent." But the fast was that, as former secretary to Senator Couzens of Michigan and a lobbyist for farm cooperatives at Washington, Carson had been an ardent and active supporter of Roosevelt-Truman philosophy for 20 years.

The Senate refused to confirm him for these reasons, giving Eisenhower a vacancy to be filled immediately. Lowell B. Mason, the GOP member, has been bitterly critical of his colleagues, and his term does not expire until Sept. 25, 1956. A Republican majority will become a reality next September, with the end of Commissioner Stephen Spingarns term.

It is also possible that James M. Mead, a Buffalo Democrat and former senator, may quit. He has frequently been mentioned as a possible candidate for governor of New York or for his old post on Capitol Hill.

• • •

REORGANIZATION—The need for an FTC reorganization was evidenced most spectacularly by its campaign publication of its inquiry into the activities of the seven petroleum corporations, and the Department of Justice's subsequent anti - trust action against these companies.

As Secretaries Acheson and Lovett have advised privately, this vote-getting proceeding jeopardizes national defense and foreign relations in an area susceptible to Communist conquest or infiltration—Iran, Iraq, Arabia.

The oil companies have been charged with conducting a cartel in violation of the Sherman Act by the FTC and D of J. Yet almost all the agreements under attack have been made with the knowledge and assistance of State since 1928, when military requirements for foreign oil imports were recognized.

Without this Middle East petroleum, which was sold to European beneficiaries of the Marshall Plan, postwar rationing of gasoline might have been necessary in this country. It is this delicate and sensitive international structure which FTC is trying to destroy, with Truman's consent.

• • •

INVESTMENTS — FTC's political prosecution has had even more far-flung and dangerous repercussions in the field of overseas politics, diplomacy and military operations. It has helped to discredit American businessmen and to endanger their investment everywhere. It explains why private capital is reluctant to reinforce Truman's Point Four program with stockholders' and investors' money.

In his controversy with the British, Mossedegh has cited the FTC report and D of J action as evidence that Anglo-American oil operators are "crooks." It has aroused suspicion against Uncle Sam's own activities in India, Egypt and the Far East generally.

It has given nervous ideas to the Venezuelans, whose relations with American firms had been excellent until recently. It may have hastened Bolivia's action in nationalizing tin mines essental to our miltary buildup.

FTC's members, of course, never dreamed that there would be this worldwide chain reaction. Nor did Truman, whose understanding of the interplay of economic forces at home and abroad is quite elementary.

But to Eisenhower, whose last pre-election assignment was to organize a system of collective security, prevention of these international embarrassments will be an immediate and major problem.

Home Demonstration Group Plans Programs Of Interest

Idea And Legal Sessions To Be Held

Utilization of economical resources will be the highlight of the Christmas Idea Bazaar-Party which is the December project of Home Demonstration Groups of Pickaway County. This is scheduled for the afternoon of Dec. 2 from 1 to 4:30 p. m. in St. Philip's parish hall, in Circleville.

Throughout the afternoon there will be displays and demonstrations related to four phases of Christmas preparation: gifts from the workbasket, gifts from the mixing bowl, gift wrapping, and centerpieces. There will be special demonstrations of textile painting, finger painting, and Swedish embroidery variations. At 2:45 p. m. a program of music and reading will be presented by Mrs. Harold Defenbaugh, Mrs. Raph Dunkle, Mrs. Russel Hedges, Weta May and Betty Lou Leist.

All homemakers are invited to visit the Idea-Party prepared by Pickaway homemakers cooperating with Extension Work in Agriculture and Home Economics through Ohio State University.

Legal Project

Last year, while planning a program, homemakers in Cooperative Extension work in Agriculture and Home Economics, decided the majority of people could profit by a legal project. The Pickaway County Bar Association is cooperating with the plan arranged by the Home Management Specialist at Ohio State university and the County Extension Agents.

The first of the legal programs in Pickaway County will be Dec. 2 at 8:30 p. m. at Nebraska Grange. Joseph Adkins, president of the County Bar Association, will be in charge.

Objective of the project is to point out some legal problems frequently confronted by rural people and to give the public an understanding of the services of attorneys. Included in the discussion will be contracts, insurance, wills and property ownership.

Other legal programs are being arranged for January at Darby school and Mt. Pleasant Grange.

BUSY DAY MENU

By BETTY NEWTON

It's a wise homemaker who plans her meals in the summertime so that she can be out-of-doors with her family as much as possible. Meat dishes which are easy to prepare and quick to serve can be nutritious and appealing as well. They'll give you a head start to jiffy meals.

Sausage Pineapple Dinner

1½ lbs. bulk pork sausage
6 slices pineapple rings
Prepared mustard

Form 1½ lbs. bulk pork sausage into 6 flat patties, a little larger than pineapple slices. Partially cook patties in a skillet, browning lightly on both sides. Spread 6 pineapple slices lightly with prepared mustard and place in a 7½ x 12-inch shallow baking dish. On the slices lay the sausage cakes. Bake in Gas range at 350 degrees for 30 minutes. Baste once or twice during cooking with a little pineapple sirup. Makes 6 servings.

Deviled Beef Patties

1 lb. ground round steak
1 tsp. salt
¼ C. chopped onion
1 tsp. prepared mustard
½ clove garlic, finely mashed
1 Tbsp. horseradish

Sauce:

1 Tbsp. Worcestershire sauce
¾ C. catchup
¼ C. melted butter or margarine

Combine ground steak, salt, onion, mustard, garlic and horseradish; mix thoroughly. Shape into 5 patties. Place on broiler rack and place rack 3 inches from flame. Broil 7 to 10 minutes on a side. Serve with sauce made by combining catchup, Worcestershire sauce and melted butter or margarine.

Christmas Meet Is Planned By Ohio Garden Club

"Christmas Traditions and Decorations," will be the theme of the demonstrated lecture by Mrs. Margaret McClure of Highland Park, Ill., at the Christmas meeting, Dec. 5 at the Higbee Company auditorium in Cleveland, planned by members of the Garden Club of Ohio.

The meeting will open at 1:30 p. m. with the newly elected president, Mrs. Emerson Gillespie of Canton, presiding. Admission will be by membership card and members from all over the state are eligible to attend.

Mrs. McClure, who is a nationally accredited judge and former member of the Board of the Garden Club of Illinois, will demonstrate how to make decorations for the home from materials which are readily available and not too expensive.

A display of Christmas arrangements, made by member clubs of Garden Club of Ohio, will be held in the foyer. Members are requested to bring green ribbons acquired during the year for exhibits at Garden Club of Ohio meetings and events. The Green Ribbon Award will be presented to the holder of the largest number of ribbons and purple awards will also be made.

Among the officers to be present will be Mrs. Emmett Barnhart of Circleville. A group of members of the Pickaway Garden Club are planning to attend this meeting.

Permanent Wave Success Depends On Operator

Women who have gone shopping for permanent waves—at least many of them—have made discoveries that surprised them. They may have paid the same prices at different shops, had the same method used, yet the results were not the same. The answer to that is simple enough: a great deal depends upon the skill of the operator.

Sometimes the hair is fuzzy after the treatment, sometimes it falls into pleasing undulations and ringlets. This is determined by the size of the lock that is taken into a curl, and in the manner of winding or coiling. An expert operator knows what should be done, realizes that different grades of hair must have different treatments.

Home Permanents

The home permanent has gained wide popularity. Some women can do the job themselves with good results. Others find it best to form a fifty-fifty partnership with a girl friend: "You'll do mine and I'll do yours."

If the hair is inclined to be dry and coarse, a cream should be brushed on lightly after the permanent. There are special preparations for this purpose, also tiny brushes that are convenient to use when forming the small rolls that compose the poodle cut.

This style of coiffure calls for hair not longer than two or two and one half inches. Trimming must be done correctly and expertly if all the strands are to be of the same length. The trim is more important in this kind of a hairdo than any other, since a few longer strands will spoil the effect. If you are planning to be poodle-like, resign yourself to a permanent wave every two months or so.

No matter what hairdo you choose, there's one rule to follow for lovely locks. It's "brush hair to beauty."

ZERO HOUR FOR POP NEARS; IT'S TURKEY CARVING TIME

By M. E. BYRNE

Written Especially for Central Press and This Newspaper

SOME DAY, some how, one of our great mechanical geniuses will up and invent a gadget for which a nation of frustrated, perspiring householders have been longing for—an automatic Thanksgiving turkey carver, table model, and family size.

This electronic marvel will slice off and serve up the white meat to the varied thicknesses desired by Aunt Eppie and Cousin Frank, will snip off in a split second a drumstick for starving Junior and, best of all, will extract and dish out the dressing, or stuffing, without getting a single moist crumb on Mom's company table cloth.

However, until the golden dawn of this glorious gadget, Pop will just have to continue "doing the honors" as kith and kin gather around the festive for the annual turkey-cranberry-and-pumpkin pie binge.

Carving a Thanksgiving turkey in swift and suitable fashion while the family looks on in highly critical fashion is no task for a weakling. It calls for steel nerves and dauntless determination.

Mom has long been hailed as a heroine of the annual American fall festival. And rightly so. She invariably reaches her culinary peak, with the bird roasted to golden brown perfection, the dressing a gourmet's dream and the potatoes and gravy a symphony of goodness; all crowned by incomparable pumpkin pie!

However, she accomplishes these miracles in the comparative privacy of the kitchen while the rest of the family is engaged in such arduous chores as watching the annual high school football classic, staring at television or decorating the mattress for a few hours' extra snooze.

Not so for Pop. When it comes time for him to do his duty with the carving set, he must do so in the full glare of all the family's rapt attention. Each move he makes is noted and commented upon.

Pop's ordeal begins when Mom proudly marches into the dining room bearing aloft the platter exuding heavenly odors, amid cries of, "What a bird!" "Biggest ever!" and "Sure is a beauty!" It's H-Hour of D-Day for the Old Man—and he knows it.

Grasping knife in right hand he stabs at the turkey with his fork-bearing left and strikes a bone! The bird swivels like an elusive halfback and bunts a couple of potatoes onto the snowy Irish linen.

Pop finally manages to get the fork firmly imbedded and begins to hack away at a drumstick which suddenly has become attached to the rest of the fowl by a hinge of reinforced steel. Saw-hack-whang-bang! No use!

In an effort to outwit the stubborn bird, Pop switches his attack to a wing and by alternately using the carving knife as a cleaver and a saw manages to sever that limb. He hopefully offers it around the table. There are no takers. Everyone wants white meat.

White meat it is! So Pop starts to work in that department and promptly slashes off a large segment of turkey skin and nothing else. This maneuver sends the bird spinning into an Immelmann turn and it slides completely off the platter.

Pops temper, as well as the table cloth, being completely wrecked, Mom sighs and says, "Oh, let me do it!" And she does. In two minutes everybody's plate is loaded with turkey.

And Pop? Look, let's not go any further with this. Let the Old Boy enjoy his Thanksgiving dinner in peace—if he can.

Child Problems and Solutions

By GARRY CLEVELAND MYERS, PhD

Twenty-five years ago a number of writers on dental health poohpoohed the brushing of teeth except for aesthetic reasons.

All emphasis was placed on proper nutrition. More recently the pendulum has swung to be more nearly common sense.

From the American Dental Society comes the advice: Brush your teeth within ten minutes after every meal for at least three minutes a day. Drink plenty of milk.

Promote your health with meat, eggs, butter, cheese, fresh fruits, green and yellow vegetables and whole wheat bread. Cut down on sweets in food and drink.

See that your children observe the rules of dental health. Get back of your local dental society for fluoridation of water in your community. Help add your city to the 125 American cities now fluoridating their water supply. Tooth decay may thus be reduced by about 60 per cent.

• • •

IF YOUR community does not have fluoridated water, ask your dentist to apply the fluoride treatment to your child's teeth, if he is under fifteen. This can reduce decay by about 40 per cent.

Tooth decay now affects about 98 per cent of our children. Half the two-year-olds of the nation have one or more decayed teeth. The average five-year-old has six.

The average youth of sixteen has seven decayed, filled or missing teeth. At the present rate the average person may expect to have 20 damaged teeth between the ages of 25 and 30, and 25 damaged, filled or missing teeth out of his original 32 permanent teeth at 65.

Take your child to the dentist as soon as his baby teeth have come in—between the age of two and three.

These primary teeth pave the way for the permanent teeth. Neglect these baby teeth and the permanent ones may emerge crookedly.

Early regular visits to the dentist also help the child to escape fears and to acquire normal courage and readiness to cooperate. (We started our children when they were two.)

Ever so many children not taken to the dentist till they have a number of decayed or disappearing teeth may experience so much discomfort as to have terrible fears of dental visits. Such tragedies may be avoided by the child who visits the dentist even before he has the first decay, especially if he continues to have the same dentist who understands children and spends plenty of time and patience in winning their confidence and cooperation.

In order to encourage such a dentist, we parents must expect him to charge us according to the time and skill he expends. Most parents, alas, expect to pay less—like movie admissions.

We best begin when the child is born to prepare him to be a good dental visitor by cultivating in him normal courage and self-reliance.

Teen Tips

Sometime soon, perhaps you'll get your first invitation to a big "formal." When it happens, you'll feel less shy and awkward, more self-confident and fun-making if you—

1. Try on your formal evening dress beforehand, complete with the jewelry, stockings and shoes that you plan to wear with it. This will give you plenty of time to decide without a frantic last-minute rush which jewelry looks best with it, etc.

2. Examine your dress, if you've worn it before, to see if any snaps or hooks or seams need repairs or if it needs cleaning before the big date. This, too, will prevent a last-minute frenzy that mght keep your date waiting. . .his enthusiasm cooling every minute.

3. Assemble your handkerchief, lipstick, key, etc. in advance and put them in your evening bag, so you won't have a wild hunt for them later.

4. Plan to "do" your hair far enough ahead so you don't have to go to school in pin-curls the day of the dance. Pin-curls should be a private affair. Nobody looks attractive enough with a headful of bobby pins under a kerchief to appear that way in school.

5. Wear your corsage right-side-up instead of upside down. It should be pinned on with the flowers uppermost as they grow. . .stems and ribbon downward. Wearing it with flowers downward makes it look as though you thought the ribbon was prettier than the flowers . . .but ribbon is used only to conceal stems and wires. So put the blossoms up, ribbon down.

ZERO HOUR FOR POP NEARS; IT'S TURKEY CARVING TIME

By M. E. BYRNE

Written Especially for Central Press and This Newspaper

SOME DAY, some how, one of our great mechanical geniuses will up and invent a gadget for which a nation of frustrated, perspiring householders have been longing for—an automatic Thanksgiving turkey carver, table model, and family size.

This electronic marvel will slice off and serve up the white meat to the varied thicknesses desired by Aunt Eppie and Cousin Frank, will snip off in a split second a drumstick for starving Junior and, best of all, will extract and dish out the dressing, or stuffing, without getting a single moist crumb on Mom's company table cloth.

However, until the golden dawn of this glorious gadget, Pop will just have to continue "doing the honors" as kith and kin gather around the festive for the annual turkey-cranberry-and-pumpkin pie binge.

Carving a Thanksgiving turkey in swift and suitable fashion while the family looks on in highly critical fashion is no task for a weakling. It calls for steel nerves and dauntless determination.

Mom has long been hailed as a heroine of the annual American fall festival. And rightly so. She invariably reaches her culinary peak, with the bird roasted to golden brown perfection, the dressing a gourmet's dream and the potatoes and gravy a symphony of goodness; all crowned by incomparable pumpkin pie!

However, she accomplishes these miracles in the comparative privacy of the kitchen while the rest of the family is engaged in such arduous chores as watching the annual high school football classic, staring at television or decorating the mattress for a few hours' extra snooze.

Not so for Pop. When it comes time for him to do his duty with the carving set, he must do so in the full glare of all the family's rapt attention. Each move he makes is noted and commented upon.

Pop's ordeal begins when Mom proudly marches into the dining room bearing aloft the platter exuding heavenly odors, amid cries of, "What a bird!" "Biggest ever!" and "Sure is a beauty!" It's H-Hour of D-Day for the Old Man—and he knows it.

Grasping knife in right hand he stabs at the turkey with his fork-bearing left and strikes a bone! The bird swivels like an elusive halfback and bunts a couple of potatoes onto the snowy Irish linen.

Pop finally manages to get the fork firmly imbedded and begins to hack away at a drumstick which suddenly has become attached to the rest of the fowl by a hinge of reinforced steel. Saw-hack-whang-bang! No use!

In an effort to outwit the stubborn bird, Pop switches his attack to a wing and by alternately using the carving knife as a cleaver and a saw manages to sever that limb. He hopefully offers it around the table. There are no takers. Everyone wants white meat.

White meat it is! So Pop starts to work in that department and promptly slashes off a large segment of turkey skin and nothing else. This maneuver sends the bird spinning into an Immelmann turn and it slides completely off the platter.

Pops temper, as well as the table cloth, being completely wrecked, Mom sighs and says, "Oh, let me do it!" And she does. In two minutes everybody's plate is loaded with turkey.

And Pop? Look, let's not go any further with this. Let the Old Boy enjoy his Thanksgiving dinner in peace—if he can.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 24—(AP)—On Jan. 20 at high noon something will happen for the first time in more than 20 years. As Eisenhower steps in and Truman steps out, this country once again will have two living ex-presidents.

Back in 1929 Calvin Coolidge joined William Howard Taft as an elder statesman. Taft died on March 8, 1930. Since then we never have had more than one living former president.

Few of us grow up to be presidents; fewer still to be ex-presidents.

So there's no clear pattern of what's expected of a man who has held the nation's highest office.

Truman undoubtedly has heard the old vaudeville joke that pretty well illustrates his present problem. The funny man says he doesn't want to be president. Straight man asks, "Why not?" Funny man says, "The job has no future in it."

• • •

IN MANY foreign countries when a party loses control its leader stays on as head of the opposition in parliament. There he can defend his past actions and plan his future ones.

It has been suggested that something like that be tried here, with ex-presidents becoming non-voting members of the Senate.

But nothing ever came of that proposal. Nor has Truman much in the way of a guide from the past when he considers what he should do.

The White House has said he has received a number of offers.

Most unusual offer: a recording company would like to peddle phonograph records of his piano solos. But Truman has said he won't talk of his plans until he's out of office.

Herbert Hoover, being independently wealthy, has had no financial worries during his long years out of office.

He has been able to do several official jobs for the government, including head a commission to study the reorganization of the executive department.

By contrast, consider Thomas Jefferson. He left the presidency $20,000 in debt. And he was such a perfect host—some of his guests stayed for weeks—that his debts mounted. He became so broke a national subscription was taken to bail him out.

Liquid Nitrogen May Save Day In Shortage

Liquid nitrogen fertilizer may be the answer to the nitrogen shortage problem for some farmers. The liquid fertilizer this year passed on-the-farm tests in Missouri and Illinois.

Although work with the liquid form is new, farmers liked the solution after they tried it.

"When we started with solutions last spring, I wasn't too sold," said Ray Eahlert, manager of the Moniteau county office of the Missouri Farmer's Association. "But we did get an extra source of nitrogen and I'm glad now we have it. I believe on the whole it works fine the year around on all soil types."

The tests were made on 4,000 acres of corn, wheat and pasture in Moniteau County and Morgan County, Ill. The corrosive nitrogen solution is carried in special tanks mounted on tractors. Solution is pumped through hoses down to knives which put the liquid into the soil.

• • •

THE FARMERS tried various amounts of nitrogen per acre for different crops. And they experimented with different means of application.

Despite those variations, they concluded that:

1. The extra source of nitrogen saved the day when other forms weren't available.
2. When correctly applied, liquid nitrogen was as productive as other forms.
3. The liquid form seemed to make corn withstand drouth better.
4. It worked best in overflow bottoms of gumbo and sandy soil.

COZY CASSEROLE

By BETTY NEWTON

Mexican Beef Pie is a cozy casserole dish that fits fall appetites to a "T." Hearty braised meats such as Swiss steaks, pot roasts and stews seem just right for cooler weather and economical meals. Mexican seasonings of this beef pie combine well with mashed potatoes and can be adjusted to family tastes.

Mexican Beef Pie

1½ lb. beef stew meat, cut into 1-inch cubes
Salt, pepper and flour
2 Tbsp. fat
½ C. chopped onion
1 clove garlic, minced
2 tsp. chili powder
1 can (8-oz.) tomato sauce
2 C. water
1 No. 2 can (2½ C.) kidney beans
4 C. mashed potatoes

Sprinkle meat with salt and pepper; roll in flour. Brown well in hot fat. Add onions, garlic, chili powder, tomato sauce and water. Cover and cook over simmer flame until tender, about 2 hours. Add kidney beans and heat thoroughly. Line bottom and sides of greased 2-quart casserole with seasoned mashed potatoes and fill with meat mixture. Bake in gas range at 375 degrees for 25 minutes. Makes 5 to 6 servings.

Note: Meat may be browned and cooked in pressure saucepan at 10 pounds pressure for 20 minutes. Reduce water to 1 cup. Gravy may be thickened after adding kidney beans, if desired.

Brown Beef Stew

2 lbs. boned chuck or round beef, 1½-inches thick
⅓ C. flour
½ tsp. salt
¼ tsp. pepper
2 Tbsp. fat
2 Tbsp. minced parsley
1 celery top, chopped
⅓ C. sliced onions
1 clove garlic, minced
3 C. boiling water
6 small onions, peeled
6 medium potatoes, pared
6 carrots, pared

Cut meat into 1½-inch pieces. Combine flour, salt and pepper in large bowl. Drop in meat and coat with flour. Heat fat in deep kettle. Brown meat on all sides. Add parsley, celery top, sliced onions, minced garlic and boiling water. Simmer until just tender, about 2 hours. Add onions, potatoes and carrots and continue cooking for 30 minutes or until vegetables are tender. Makes 5 to 6 servings.

'Killer' Keller Curve On 104 Now Thought Safe For Traffic

A dangerous curve on Route 104 in front of the farm of Commissioner John Keller is now expected to be reasonably free from accidents.

During the last three weeks the sharp bend has been labelled "killer" curve instead of Keller curve by local law enforcement officers.

That nickname stemmed from a series of accidents on the bend in the last three weeks which have resulted in injuries to several drivers and death to one.

Following the latest accident on the curve, which happened last Thursday night when a truckload of dairy products spilled and the driver suffered minor injuries, state highway workers have taken steps to eliminate future mishaps.

* * *

STATE HIGHWAY Patrolman Bob Greene of Circleville said signs showing a 45-degree turn at the curve have been replaced with signs showing a 90-degree curve and a recommended speed limit of 25 miles per hour.

In addition, posts have been imbedded on both approaches to the curve with white reflecting tape marking the bend. Large arrows of reflecting material visible from both approaches also have been installed.

Majority of the accidents on the curve have involved south-bound vehicles, which have taken the dip too fast and then lost control when reaching the top.

Instead of being banked as most curves are, the Keller curve is unbanked, tending even to go downgrade. Greene said the state later plans to reelevate the west edge of the curve to provide a banked turn.

Because of frequency of accidents, there is no farm fence at the apex of the curve and an additional berm of more than 20 feet has been provided for motorists who lose control on the turn.

Moose Appeals License Denial

An appeal by Circleville's Moose Lodge seeking a beer permit will be heard Wednesday by the state board of liquor control in Columbus.

The local lodge is appealing a decision made earlier this year when a similar request was denied.

The denial came following study of objections to the issuance of the license by First Methodist church, located near the lodge, and other churches and organizations.

Workers Save Vision Being 'Wise Owls'

A total of 167 industrial workers in Ohio plants, including Circleville's Ralston Purina Mill, enjoy good vision today because they wore safety goggles at the right time.

That's how many in Ohio are now members of the Wise Owl Club of America.

The Wise Owl Club, sponsored by the National Society for the Prevention of Blindness, is made up exclusively of those who saved their eyes by remembering to use safety equipment.

In order to qualify for the club, a worker must first show his damaged safety goggles. In the three years since the club was started as a safety incentive measure, 3,403 workers have been enrolled — men and women who would have lost one or both eyes if they had been "wise guys" instead of Wise Owls.

The savings in average compensation alone amounts to $12.6 million.

A total of 4,208 eyes have been saved since the Wise Owl Club was organized in 1947. There are now 616 industrial plants in 48 states, Hawaii and Canada with Wise Owl Chapters.

The fact that thousands of eye accidents were prevented through the Wise Owl program represents an incalculable saving in human suffering, medical expenses and lost production.

With pride and satisfaction the National Society for the Prevention of Blindness points to the 4,208 serious eye injuries that were prevented, and congratulates the plant managers and employes who made this fine record.

Lads Sing Hymns As Pal, 15, Dies

GREENSBURG, Pa., Nov. 24—(AP)—Two teenaged hunting companions sang hymns as 15-year-old James W. Gibson lay dying of a shotgun wound in a cold, wet stone quarry.

The youth was wounded Saturday when he dropped a log, discharging one of the shotguns he and three pals had stacked while searching for wood to build a fire. The blast severed an artery in his leg. One boy ran to get a doctor. James asked his other two friends to sing some hymns. Shortly afterwards he died.

It would seem from the context that Jowitt has taken his cue from Alistair Cooke's book, "A Generation on Trial," a book which, at the time it was published, I was tempted to review but resisted the temptation because it seemed to me that here was a British reporter who had long been in America and learned too little about its people, most of whom do not live on Park Avenue.

Cooke is now an American citizen and by law has become one of us.

When Jowitt's book appears in this country, if ever, I shall re-read Cooke to see how one has influenced the other. Meanwhile, I found a clipping of a review by Miss Rebecca West in which she says:

"So Mr. Cooke goes on, always creating an impression unfavourable to Chambers and favourable to Hiss, in big things and in small. It might be that the Committee would have shown prejudice against Hiss in listening to Chambers if his story about the espionage group had been unrelated to any known persons or events. . ."

It is possible that Mr. Cooke does not know that the FBI had this case sewed up long before it came to trial and that the Administration prevented the usual judicial course from flowing.

Local Persons To Be On TV

Four local persons, three from Circleville and one from Stoutsville, are to be featured during a one-half hour television program Sunday.

They are members of the "Country Church Quartet," which in the past has broadcast over Station WHOK in Lancaster.

Members of the group from Circleville are Miss Nancy Waple, soprano; Mrs. Ray Beery, alto; and Mrs. Betty Goodman, accompanist. Vance Crites of Stoutsville is tenor; and Floyd Ruff of Amanda is bass.

The group is to appear over WBNS-TV at 2 p. m. next Sunday for one-half hour.

Night Bombers Plaster Red Supply Trucks

SEOUL, Nov. 24—(AP)—B26 Marauder bombers Sunday night destroyed 200 Communist vehicles in their greatest truck-busting foray of the year.

The Marauders, ranging far and wide over the Red highway network, brought their nine-day bag to 1,175 trucks. The ceaseless attacks are designed to stem the flow of supplies for frontline Communist troops.

Twelve B29 Superforts, the fly-by-night partners of the Marauders, dropped 120 tons of high explosives on a Red communications center near Sinanju on the west coast, 40 miles north of Pyongyang, the North Korean capital.

In daylight sorties, U. S. F86 Sabrejets shot down a Russian-type Mig15 jet. It was the seventh straight day of victory for the Sabres. Their score for the week stands at 17 Migs destroyed, two probably destroyed and four damaged.

Ground action Sunday was highlighted by a series of Red harrassing attacks all along the bleak 155-mile battlefront.

A U. S. Eighth Army staff officer said the Reds appeared content to feel out the Allied defenses. None of their tentative jabs was aimed at taking any UN positions.

The largest Red probe-in-force was launched at Sniper Ridge, war-scarred hill mass on the Central Front. Allied rockets and artillery shells broke up the thrust.

Safety Council Urges Holiday Savings Plan To Stop Deaths

The National Safety Council today announced a nationwide holiday savings plan to stop accidents.

"If every American will join this savings plan before the holidays, a real bonus—human life—will be paid," said Ned H. Dearborn, Council president.

The campaign has been joined by more than 160 national organizations and by city and state public officials and civic leaders. They will unite in creating an awareness of the special holiday hazards, and will enlist voluntary cooperation from every American to hold accidents to a minimum this Christmas.

The year-end holiday season is the most dangerous period of the year, Dearborn said, and accidents annually mar the celebration in thousands of homes. Traffic accident deaths are about twice as high as the annual daily average.

* * *

THIS YEAR, with the holiday consisting of four days for many persons, the toll could be even higher than the 351 traffic deaths reported during the four-day Christmas weekend last year.

"Travel is especially heavy over long holidays, which encourage traditional family get-togethers even when the members must drive considerable distance," he said.

"The festive spirit of the season, plus the normal winter hazards of bad weather, slippery roads and longer periods of darkness create added danger."

For safe and merry holidays, the National Safety Council suggests these precautions:

1. Driving or walking, put the spirit of "good will toward men" into practical use by being extra courteous to others. And take your time!
2. If streets are icy or slippery, keep your speed down and your caution up.
3. If you imbibe stay away from the steering wheel of a car.

AFL Chiefs Funeral Held In Coshocton

COSHOCTON, Nov. 24 — (AP)—Coshocton said farewell Monday to its No. 1 citizen, Bill Green.

Green, American Federation of Labor president since 1924, died at 82 Friday of a heart ailment. His Baptist funeral service was held in the large Grace Methodist Church so that as many townspeople, labor leaders and government officials as possible could pay their respects.

Heads of 13 AFL unions served as honorary pallbearers. But friends said the fact that would have pleased Green most is that members of the Coshocton Central Trades and Labor Council were the active pallbearers.

Secretary of Labor Maurice Tobin represented President Truman. Paul Herzog, chairman of the National Labor Relations Board, also attended.

George Meany, secretary-treasurer and acting president of the federation, served as the 14th honorary pallbearer.

After the funeral, members of the AFL executive council, Meany and 13 vice presidents, were to leave Coshocton by train for a meeting in Washington to select a new union chieftain. Speculation as to Green's successor has centered on Meany, long the No. 2 man in AFL administration. He is 58.

Safety Council Urges Holiday Savings Plan To Stop Deaths

The National Safety Council today announced a nationwide holiday savings plan to stop accidents.

"If every American will join this savings plan before the holidays, a real bonus—human life—will be paid," said Ned H. Dearborn, Council president.

The campaign has been joined by more than 160 national organizations and by city and state public officials and civic leaders. They will unite in creating an awareness of the special holiday hazards, and will enlist voluntary cooperation from every American to hold accidents to a minimum this Christmas.

The year-end holiday season is the most dangerous period of the year, Dearborn said, and accidents annually mar the celebration in thousands of homes. Traffic accident deaths are about twice as high as the annual daily average.

* * *

THIS YEAR, with the holiday consisting of four days for many persons, the toll could be even higher than the 351 traffic deaths reported during the four-day Christmas weekend last year.

"Travel is especially heavy over long holidays, which encourage traditional family get-togethers even when the members must drive considerable distance," he said.

"The festive spirit of the season, plus the normal winter hazards of bad weather, slippery roads and longer periods of darkness create added danger."

For safe and merry holidays, the National Safety Council suggests these precautions:

1. Driving or walking, put the spirit of "good will toward men" into practical use by being extra courteous to others. And take your time!
2. If streets are icy or slippery, keep your speed down and your caution up.
3. If you imbibe stay away from the steering wheel of a car.

Wounded Hunter Drives 12 Miles

LIGONIER, Pa., Nov. 24 — (AP)—George Giesey, 35, of Ligonier, who drove 12 miles to his home by auto despite a bullet wound under his heart, is in critical condition in McGinnis Hospital.

Giesey told state police a .22-caliber pistol discharged while he was cleaning it at his hunting lodge. He collapsed after reaching home.

AFL Chiefs Funeral Held In Coshocton

COSHOCTON, Nov. 24 — (AP)—Coshocton said farewell Monday to its No. 1 citizen, Bill Green.

Green, American Federation of Labor president since 1924, died at 82 Friday of a heart ailment. His Baptist funeral service was held in the large Grace Methodist Church so that as many townspeople, labor leaders and government officials as possible could pay their respects.

Heads of 13 AFL unions served as honorary pallbearers. But friends said the fact that would have pleased Green most is that members of the Coshocton Central Trades and Labor Council were the active pallbearers.

Secretary of Labor Maurice Tobin represented President Truman. Paul Herzog, chairman of the National Labor Relations Board, also attended.

George Meany, secretary-treasurer and acting president of the federation, served as the 14th honorary pallbearer.

After the funeral, members of the AFL executive council, Meany and 13 vice presidents, were to leave Coshocton by train for a meeting in Washington to select a new union chieftain. Speculation as to Green's successor has centered on Meany, long the No. 2 man in AFL administration. He is 58.

Road Apparently Is Well-Named

SEOUL, Nov. 24 — (AP)—Two miles of dirt road in a sector of the U. S. First Corps begins with a sign:

"Marilyn Monroe Stretch."

Twenty-three curves later, another sign reads:

"See why?"

Ohio College Football Card Nears Finale

COLUMBUS, Nov. 24 — (AP)—End Bob Joslin scored the first two touchdowns in Saturday's 27-7 win by Ohio State over Michigan—as many six-pointers as the Bucks had scored against the Wolverines in seven previous seasons. Tackle George Jacoby intercepted a pass to set up the final touchdown.

The victory over Michigan was the first in eight years and it kept the Wolverines out of the Rose Bowl and off the Big Ten throne.

While the Bucks were upsetting favored Michigan, Ohio University was being held to a 21-21 deadlock by Marshall's Thundering Herd in the only other Saturday contest involving a Buckeye club.

Only three games remain on the 1953 schedule, Thanksgiving Day sending Miami against Cincinnati for the Mid-American Conference championship, Case Tech against Western Reserve and Dayton against Chattanooga.

Dayton, a 14-13 loser to Xavier Nov. 2, avenged that loss by whipping the Musketeers 13-0 Sunday at Cincinnati. The Flyers played the state's only 11-game schedule.

FRED BRUNEY, OHIO STATE University defensive ace, goes high into the air to intercept a Michigan pass in this second period action as the underdog Buckeyes took advantage of every opportunity and upset the favored Wolverines 27 to 7. A tremendous crowd of 81,541 persons crowded into the Stadium at Columbus, Ohio, to witness O. S. U.'s first victory over the Wolves in seven seasons. The loss, their second in conference play, dropped the University of Michigan from Rose Bowl contention.

Only Four Tilts Due For County Teams This Week

Cage fans of Pickaway County have lean pickings ahead of them for Thanksgiving week.

Only four games are on this week's menu, none of them county league encounters. Three of the games are carded for Tuesday night, while the fourth is due on Friday night.

Scheduled for Tuesday are Walnut Tigers at Ashville, Darby Trojans at Madison Rural and New Holland Bulldogs at Washington C.H.

Wednesday for Circleville fans will feature the Tiger season opener in Chillicothe.

Lone game carded for Friday is Pickaway Pirates at Darby, a non-league engagement.

Ohio State Places Four Men On AP's All Big Ten Team

CHICAGO, Nov. 24—(AP)—A wide-open season that saw virtually every team get in a top caliber lick or two is reflected in the 1952 Associated Press All-Big Ten football squad.

Every school in the conference is represented on the first offense-defense platoons, selected with the cooperation of Big Ten coaches.

Ohio State won four berths; Michigan, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Purdue and Illinois three each, and Northwestern, Iowa and Indiana one each.

Minnesota's great halfback, Paul Giel, was the only unanimous choice. He is a repeater from last year's honor team.

Closest battles were at offensive end and quarterback.

Illinois' Tommy O'Connell won the pilot post on the basis of a record-shattering aerial performance. Purdue's Dale Samuels and Michigan's Ted Topor were close runnersup.

* * *

JOE COLLIER of Northwestern, another record-breaker as a pass receiver, nailed down one of the end spots and Bernie Flowers of Purdue the other. Illinois' flank duo, Rocky Ryan and Rex Smith, barely was edged out.

Completing the first team offensive backfield were Gene Gedman of Indiana, placed at a halfback post, and Alan Ameche, Wisconsin's powerful runner, fullback.

Five sophomores were honored on the 22-man squad—Ameche, Jim Reichenbach, Ohio State, offensive guard; Art Walker, Michigan, defensive tackle; Fred Preziosio, Purdue, defensive tackle, and Bob McNamara, Minnesota, defensive back.

Here are the lineups of the two teams:

OFFENSE

E—Collier, Northwestern
T—Suminski, Wisconsin
G—Timm, Michigan
C—Cudzik, Purdue
G—Reichenbach, Ohio State
T—Jacoby, Ohio State
E—Flowers, Purdue
B—O'Connell, Illinois
B—Giel, Minnesota
B—Gedman, Indiana
B—Ameche, Wisconsin

DEFENSE

E—Wodziak, Illinois
T—Walker, Michigan
G—Kennedy, Wisconsin
LB—Zatkoff, Michigan
LB—Curcillo, Ohio State
G—Zachary, Minnesota
T—Preziosio, Purdue
E—Fenton, Iowa
B—McNamara, Minnesota
B—Bruney, Ohio State
S—Brosky, Illinois

Honorable mention included these Buckeyes:

Ends—Joslin and Grimes.
Tackles—Hietikko and Vavroch.
Guard—Takacs.
Center—Krisher.
Backs—Borton and Hlay.

Jersey, California Buyers Pace Harness Horse Sales

COLUMBUS, Nov. 24—(AP)—Leonard J. Buck's Allwood Stable of Far Hills, N. J., and Sol Camp, Shafter, Calif., potato farmer, were the leading purchasers of harness horse yearlings in 1952. Both spent more than $100,000.

Buck and Camp were among 21 owners and-or trainers who shelled out at least $15,000 apiece for trotting and pacing yearlings this year, according to figures compiled by the U. S. Trotting Association. The yearling sales began in September in Delaware, Ohio, and concluded last week in Harrisburg, Pa.

The Allwood Stable, which made its debut on the racing scene this season, laid out $127,000 for seven head, six colts and a filly. Camp, a long-time patron of the sport, gave $109,400 for eight colts and two fillies.

The top yearling price was paid by C. M. Saunders of Toledo, who went to $46,000 for Smashaway, a full brother to his fleet trotter Bangaway.

Allwood Stable's two top purchases were the Volomite colt Kimberly Volo and the Wilmington colt Sparkle Way, bid off at $35,000 apiece.

* * *

CAMP PAID $25,000 to get the Hal Dale colt Diamond Hal and another $25,000 for the Adios colt Meadow Pace.

Col. E. J. Baker, St. Charles, Ill., horseman who owns Greyhound, the world's champion trotter, was the third leading purchaser with $66,200 expended for six head. His top price was $20,000 for Solomite, a son of Volomite.

Among the public stable trainers active at the bidding rings were Del Miller, Meadow Lands, Pa.; Harry Fitzpatrick, Charleston, Ill., and Billy Haughton, Fultonville, N. Y.

Miller, as agent, purchased 13 head for $54,750. Fitzpatrick, on behalf of his patrons, paid $38,200 for seven head and Haughton bought 11 youngsters for $23,350.

Others who spent $30,000 or more were: Saunders, four head for $54,100; Castleton Farm, Lexington, Ky., nine head for $48,500; Arthur Nardin, New York City, five head for $30,500; and W. G. Reynolds, Louisville, Ky., one colt—the pacer Meadow Gold, a half brother to Reynolds' Meadow Rice—for $30,000.

Only 2 Bowl Berths Still Remain Open

Wisconsin Said Due To Get Big Ten Nod For Pasadena Trip

NEW YORK, Nov. 24—(AP)—Only two major bowl spots remained unfilled Monday and both teams were expected to be filled before nightfall.

The Big Ten representative for the Rose Bowl will be either Wisconsin or Purdue while Alabama's opponent in the Orange Bowl probably will be Navy or Syracuse.

All the others are filled. Southern California clinched the Pacific Coast nod in the Rose Bowl with a 14-12 victory over UCLA Saturday, while Georgia Tech and Mississippi will meet in the Sugar Bowl and Texas will play Tennessee in the Cotton Bowl.

Big Ten athletic directors were being polled for their choice for the Pasadena assignment, and although the voting was in strictest secrecy, the chances were that Wisconsin would get the assignment because:

1. The Badgers have a better overall record than Purdue.
2. Wisconsin has not won the league championship since 1912.

* * *

WHICHEVER team goes, though, will face an unenviable task because Southern California will rule the heavy favorite as it would over almost any team in the country.

The fact that Wisconsin has a chance of being left out is the Badgers' own fault. All they had to do Saturday was beat Minnesota, a team beaten three times and tied once. But the Badgers were held to a 21-21 tie, while Purdue was eking out a 21-16 victory over six-times-beaten Indiana. The Boilermakers, in fact, were saved by the clock running out and a five-yard penalty to Indiana on the Purdue 1-yard line.

Both Wisconsin and Purdue obviously were somewhat nervous as was Michigan, which was whipped by Ohio State, 27-7. Had the Wolverines won as expected, they would have had it. Now they're just among the also rans.

Until Sunday, the Orange Bowl was sitting back just watching and waiting. But Alabama's beautifully contrived 27-7 triumph over Maryland made the selectors jump for the Crimson Tide. Although beaten twice, Alabama played a murderous schedule, and still has one game to go, against Auburn.

Navy, beaten only by Maryland and Notre Dame, popped into the speculation Sunday night. The Middies have played in only one bowl game before—in 1924 in the Rose Bowl, when they tied Washington, 14-14.

* * *

WHAT SET OFF the speculation of Navy making the trip south was an unusual Sunday conference among high academy brass, coach Eddie Erdelatz and Athletic Director Ian Eddy.

The Middies trounced Columbia, 28-0, Saturday and wind up their affairs against Army in Philadelphia this week.

Syracuse, probably the class of the East, got beaten by one point in its season opener against Bolling Air Force Base, then roared through seven opponents, winding up with a 26-13 victory over Fordham Saturday. Along the way, the Orange took its only bad plastering, a 48-7 loss to Michigan State.

Pitt, another team that was rated high on the list of Orange Bowl eligibles, saw its chances go up in the smoke of a 17-0 whitewashing at the hands of Penn State.

Otherwise, you can just about write finis to the 1952 campaign. There are a few more games on tap the most important of which is the Cornell-Penn affair Thanksgiving Day. If Penn wins it, as it should, the Quakers will take the Ivy League title.

Texas A & M plays Texas the same day, while on Saturday, Boston College goes against Holy Cross, Georgia Tech tackles Georgia, Tennessee meets Vanderbilt and Southern California visits Notre Dame.

Michigan State, the No. 1 team in the country, cemented its position by closing the books with a 62-13 thrashing of Marquette. Tennessee, however, was held to a 14-14 tie by Kentucky in a surprise. Duke won the Southern Conference title by thrashing North Carolina 34-0, and Oklahoma captured its fifth straight Big Seven crown with a 34-13 rout of Nebraska.

Hatters Advance In Bowling Test

Circleville Top Hat bowling team Sunday advanced in the Bowling Proprietor's tournament by defeating Model Dairy of Chillicothe at Moose alleys.

The Hatters Sunday posted an aggregate 4-game total of 3,655 pins while the Dairy team registered only 3,372.

Hitting high for the Hatters was Manley Smith with 769 pins, while Ward Skinner was next with 757 and Art McGran posted a 755. Dave Olney rolled a 740 and Bob Moon registered a 634.

Next match for the Top Hat keglers will be against Taylor's of Chillicothe.

Ohio College Football Card Nears Finale

COLUMBUS, Nov. 24 — (AP)—End Bob Joslin scored the first two touchdowns in Saturday's 27-7 win by Ohio State over Michigan—as many six-pointers as the Bucks had scored against the Wolverines in seven previous seasons. Tackle George Jacoby intercepted a pass to set up the final touchdown.

The victory over Michigan was the first in eight years and it kept the Wolverines out of the Rose Bowl and off the Big Ten throne.

While the Bucks were upsetting favored Michigan, Ohio University was being held to a 21-21 deadlock by Marshall's Thundering Herd in the only other Saturday contest involving a Buckeye club.

The result left the Ohio colleges with a record of 55 victories, 31 losses and 4 ties and a scoring edge of 1,923 to 1,262 for 90 interstate contests.

Only three games remain on the 1953 schedule, Thanksgiving Day sending Miami against Cincinnati for the Mid-American Conference championship, Case Tech against Western Reserve and Dayton against Chattanooga.

Dayton, a 14-13 loser to Xavier Nov. 2, avenged that loss by whipping the Musketeers 13-0 Sunday at Cincinnati. The Flyers played the state's only 11-game schedule.

Employment

RELIABLE man with car wanted, part or full time, to call on farmers in N. Pickaway County. Wonderful opportunity. $10 to $20 in a day. No experience or capital required. Permanent. Write today. McNESS COMPANY, Dept. A, Freeport, Ill.

EXPERIENCED furnace mechanic wanted. Must know how to install coal, gas and oil furnaces. Year 'round work guaranteed. Good wages, phone 821 or contact C. R. Frame, 163 W. Main St.

SECRETARY wanted for new local business—one with bookkeeping experience. Write box 1946 c-o Herald, stating age, experience and wages expected.

WOMAN wanted to do house cleaning Friday, each week. Ph. 343 of 1862.

WOMAN wanted to care for 2 children 5 days per week. Phone 930-Y.

FRED BRUNEY, OHIO STATE University defensive ace, goes high into the air to intercept a Michigan pass in this second period action as the underdog Buckeyes took advantage of every opportunity and upset the favored Wolverines 27 to 7. A tremendous crowd of 81,541 persons crowded into the Stadium at Columbus, Ohio, to witness O. S. U.'s first victory over the Wolves in seven seasons. The loss, their second in conference play, dropped the University of Michigan from Rose Bowl contention.

Only Four Tilts Due For County Teams This Week

Cage fans of Pickaway County have lean pickings ahead of them for Thanksgiving week.

Only four games are on this week's menu, none of them county league encounters. Three of the games are carded for Tuesday night, while the fourth is due on Friday night.

Scheduled for Tuesday are Walnut Tigers at Ashville, Darby Trojans at Madison Rural and New Holland Bulldogs at Washington C.H.

Wednesday for Circleville fans will feature the Tiger season opener in Chillicothe.

Lone game carded for Friday is Pickaway Pirates at Darby, a non-league engagement.

Ohio State Places Four Men On AP's All Big Ten Team

CHICAGO, Nov. 24—(AP)—A wide-open season that saw virtually every team get in a top caliber lick or two is reflected in the 1952 Associated Press All-Big Ten football squad.

Every school in the conference is represented on the first offense-defense platoons, selected with the cooperation of Big Ten coaches.

Ohio State won four berths; Michigan, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Purdue and Illinois three each, and Northwestern, Iowa and Indiana one each.

Minnesota's great halfback, Paul Giel, was the only unanimous choice. He is a repeater from last year's honor team.

Closest battles were at offensive end and quarterback.

Illinois' Tommy O'Connell won the pilot post on the basis of a record-shattering aerial performance. Purdue's Dale Samuels and Michigan's Ted Topor were close runnersup.

* * *

JOE COLLIER of Northwestern, another record-breaker as a pass receiver, nailed down one of the end spots and Bernie Flowers of Purdue the other. Illinois' flank duo, Rocky Ryan and Rex Smith, barely was edged out.

Completing the first team offensive backfield were Gene Gedman of Indiana, placed at a halfback post, and Alan Ameche, Wisconsin's powerful runner, fullback.

Five sophomores were honored on the 22-man squad—Ameche, Jim Reichenbach, Ohio State, offensive guard; Art Walker, Michigan, defensive tackle; Fred Preziosio, Purdue, defensive tackle, and Bob McNamara, Minnesota, defensive back.

Here are the lineups of the two teams:

OFFENSE

E—Collier, Northwestern
T—Suminski, Wisconsin
G—Timm, Michigan
C—Cudzik, Purdue
G—Reichenbach, Ohio State
T—Jacoby, Ohio State
E—Flowers, Purdue
B—O'Connell, Illinois
B—Giel, Minnesota
B—Gedman, Indiana
B—Ameche, Wisconsin

DEFENSE

E—Wodziak, Illinois
T—Walker, Michigan
G—Kennedy, Wisconsin
LB—Zatkoff, Michigan
LB—Curcillo, Ohio State
G—Zachary, Minnesota
T—Prezioso, Purdue
E—Fenton, Iowa
B—McNamara, Minnesota
B—Bruney, Ohio State
S—Brosky, Illinois

Honorable mention included these Buckeyes:

Ends—Joslin and Grimes.
Tackles—Hietikko and Vavroch.
Guard—Takacs.

Backs—Borton and Hlay.

Jersey, California Buyers Pace Harness Horse Sales

COLUMBUS, Nov. 24—(AP)—Leonard J. Buck's Allwood Stable of Far Hills, N. J., and Sol Camp, Shafter, Calif., potato farmer, were the leading purchasers of harness horse yearlings in 1952. Both spent more than $100,000.

Buck and Camp were among 21 owners and-or trainers who shelled out at least $15,000 apiece for trotting and pacing yearlings this year, according to figures compiled by the U. S. Trotting Association. The yearling sales began in September in Delaware, Ohio, and concluded last week in Harrisburg, Pa.

The Allwood Stable, which made its debut on the racing scene this season, laid out $127,000 for seven head, six colts and a filly. Camp, a long-time patron of the sport, gave $109,400 for eight colts and two fillies.

The top yearling price was paid by C. M. Saunders of Toledo, who went to $46,000 for Smashaway, a full brother to his fleet trotter Bangaway.

Allwood Stable's two top purchases were the Volomite colt Kimberly Volo and the Wilmington colt Sparkle Way, bid off at $35,000 apiece.

* * *

CAMP PAID $25,000 to get the Hal Dale colt Diamond Hal and another $25,000 for the Adios colt Meadow Pace.

Col. E. J. Baker, St. Charles, Ill., horseman who owns Greyhound, the world's champion trotter, was the third leading purchaser with $66,200 expended for six head. His top price was $20,000 for Solomite, a son of Volomite.

Among the public stable trainers active at the bidding rings were Del Miller, Meadow Lands, Pa.; Harry Fitzpatrick, Charleston, Ill., and Billy Haughton, Fultonville, N. Y.

Miller, as agent, purchased 13 head for $54,750. Fitzpatrick, on behalf of his patrons, paid $38,200 for seven head and Haughton bought 11 youngsters for $23,350.

Others who spent $30,000 or more were: Saunders, four head for $54,100; Castleton Farm, Lexington, Ky., nine head for $48,500; Arthur Nardin, New York City, five head for $30,500; and W. G. Reynolds, Louisville, Ky., one colt—the pacer Meadow Gold, a half brother to Reynolds' Meadow Rice—for $30,000.

Only 2 Bowl Berths Still Remain Open

Wisconsin Said Due To Get Big Ten Nod For Pasadena Trip

NEW YORK, Nov. 24—(AP)—Only two major bowl spots remained unfilled Monday and both teams were expected to be filled before nightfall.

The Big Ten representative for the Rose Bowl will be either Wisconsin or Purdue while Alabama's opponent in the Orange Bowl probably will be Navy or Syracuse.

All the others are filled. Southern California clinched the Pacific Coast nod in the Rose Bowl with a 14-12 victory over UCLA Saturday, while Georgia Tech and Mississippi will meet in the Sugar Bowl and Texas will play Tennessee in the Cotton Bowl.

Big Ten athletic directors were being polled for their choice for the Pasadena assignment, and although the voting was in strictest secrecy, the chances were that Wisconsin would get the assignment because:

1. The Badgers have a better overall record than Purdue.

2. Wisconsin has not won the league championship since 1912.

* * *

WHICHEVER team goes, though, will face an unenviable task because Southern California will rule the heavy favorite as it would over almost any team in the country.

The fact that Wisconsin has a chance of being left out is the Badgers' own fault. All they had to do Saturday was beat Minnesota, a team beaten three times and tied once. But the Badgers were held to a 21-21 tie, while Purdue was eking out a 21-16 victory over six-times-beaten Indiana. The Boilermakers, in fact, were saved by the clock running out and a five-yard penalty to Indiana on the Purdue 1-yard line.

Both Wisconsin and Purdue obviously were somewhat nervous as was Michigan, which was whipped by Ohio State, 27-7. Had the Wolverines won as expected, they would have had it. Now they're just among the also rans.

Until Sunday, the Orange Bowl was sitting back just watching and waiting. But Alabama's beautifully contrived 27-7 triumph over Maryland made the selectors jump for the Crimson Tide. Although beaten twice, Alabama played a murderous schedule, and still has one game to go, against Auburn.

Navy, beaten only by Maryland and Notre Dame, popped into the speculation Sunday night. The Middies have played in only one bowl game before—in 1924 in the Rose Bowl, when they tied Washington, 14-14.

* * *

WHAT SET OFF the speculation of Navy making the trip south was an unusual Sunday conference among high academy brass, coach Eddie Erdelatz and Athletic Director Ian Eddy.

The Middies trounced Columbia, 28-0, Saturday and wind up their affairs against Army in Philadelphia this week.

Syracuse, probably the class of the East, got beaten by one point in its season opener against Bolling Air Force Base, then roared through seven opponents, winding up with a 26-13 victory over Fordham Saturday. Along the way, the Orange took its only bad plastering, a 48-7 loss to Michigan State.

Pitt, another team that was rated high on the list of Orange Bowl eligibles, saw its chances go up in the smoke of a 17-0 whitewashing at the hands of Penn State.

Otherwise, you can just about write finis to the 1952 campaign. There are a few more games on tap the most important of which is the Cornell-Penn affair Thanksgiving Day. If Penn wins it, as it should, the Quakers will take the Ivy League title.

Texas A & M plays Texas the same day, while on Saturday, Boston College goes against Holy Cross, Georgia Tech tackles Georgia, Tennessee meets Vanderbilt and Southern California visits Notre Dame.

Michigan State, the No. 1 team in the country, cemented its position by closing the books with a 62-13 thrashing of Marquette. Tennessee, however, was held to a 14-14 tie by Kentucky in a surprise. Duke won the Southern Conference title by thrashing North Carolina 34-0, and Oklahoma captured its fifth straight Big Seven crown with a 34-13 rout of Nebraska.

Hatters Advance In Bowling Test

Circleville Top Hat bowling team Sunday advanced in the Bowling Proprietor's tournament by defeating Model Dairy of Chillicothe at Moose alleys.

The Hatters Sunday posted an aggregate 4-game total of 3,655 pins while the Dairy team registered only 3,372.

Hitting high for the Hatters was Manley Smith with 769 pins, while Ward Skinner was next with 757 and Art McGran posted a 755. Dave Olney rolled a 740 and Bob Moon registered a 634.

Next match for the Top Hat keglers will be against Taylor's of Chillicothe.

Pro Football League Knotted Following Sunday's Upsets

CLEVELAND, Nov. 24 — (AP)—If you're rooting for one of the 12 National League football teams, the odds are 7 to 5 your team is one of the leaders.

Three clubs, Cleveland, New York and Philadelphia, are deadlocked for the No. 1 spot in the American Division, also with 6-3 records.

The four-way standoff in the National Conference is certain to last only a couple of days. Green Bay and Detroit are scheduled to clash on Thursday in the Lions' home den and the winner will sit down for turkey dinner with the undisputed lead.

The conference top slots really will be up for grabs next Sunday, when Los Angeles, for the second straight week, clashes with San Francisco, Cleveland tangles with the Washington Redskins, the New York Giants travel to Pittsburgh, and the Philadelphia Eagles take on the Chicago Cardinals.

The Rams climaxed a remarkable recovery from their early season impotency Sunday by vanquishing the 49ers, 35-9.

At Green Bay, the surprising Packers picked up their fourth straight virtory at the expense of th Dallas Texans, 42-14.

The Detroit Lions, tied for the lead with San Francisco last week, came a cropper against the Chicago Bears 24-23.

At Cleveland, the Eagles came from behind with two fourth-quarter scores to upset the Browns, 28-20.

The New York Giants, who went without a touchdown against Green Bay last week, were held scoreless by Washington for almost three periods but finally overcame a 10-0 Redskin lead to win, 14-10.

The rapidly improving Pittsburgh Steelers, playing at home, edged the Chicago Cardinals, 17-14, in a game which didn't mean much in the standings.

Lou Groza, adding to league kicking records he already held, booted two field goals and a pair of conversions. That makes him 16 field goals for the season and 96 league conversions without a miss.

HARRY BYRD, rookie pitcher of the Philadelphia Athletics this season, has been selected "rookie" of the year in the American league. Byrd, 28, is a righthander. He won 15 games. (International)

Bivins Confident In Charles Test

CHICAGO, Nov. 24 — (AP)—Both Jimmy Bivins and his manager are bursting with confidence that the Cleveland clouter will score an upset knockout victory Wednesday night over Ezzard Charles, former heavyweight champion.

"He's sharp," Bivins' mnager, Allie Zack, declared as he watched the veteran box three rounds Sunday with two sparring mates. The bout will be at 10 p. m. (EST) Wednesday in the Chicago Stadium. It will be broadcast and telecast nationally by CBS.

Bucks To Select '53 Grid Captain

COLUMBUS, Nov. 24—(AP)—Ohio State's gridders name their 1953 captain Monday night and the top candidates for the boss of the Bucks are end Bob Joslin of Middletown and All-Big-Ten tackle George Jacoby of Toledo.

The upcoming captain will join Coach Woody Hayes in leading the Ohioans through one of the toughest schedules ever faced by the Buckeyes. Starting Sept. 26, Ohio meets Indiana here, California away, Illinois here, Pennsylvania and Wisconsin on the road, Northwestern, Michigan State and Purdue here, and Michigan at Ann Arbor on successive Saturdays.

German, Yankee Speedsters Win

JUAREZ, Mexico, Nov. 24—(AP)—An unconventional German sports car, a souped up Lincoln and their drivers are sharing plaudits as winners of the world's most gruelling speed test, the Pan-American road race.

German Engineer Karl Kling, outwardly calm but inwardly feeling the strain, pushed his Mercedes Benz at speeds up to 150 miles an hour Sunday to take $17,422 first money for sports cars. Chuck Stevenson, 1952 U. S. racing champion from Fresno, Calif., nosed home first with a Lincoln in the modified stock car class and earned $11,628

Tigers Ready For 1st Tilt On Wednesday

Circleville high school will knock the cap from its 1952 basketball season Wednesday night with a road trip to Chillicothe.

The Tiger-Cavalier varsity match is expected to get underway at about 8:15 p. m. Wednesday, preceded by the reserve contest at about 7 p. m.

Coach William Courtney, in his freshman year as pilot for the Circleville hardwood fortunes, has trimmed the Tiger team down to 13 players in preparation for the trip.

However, Courtney said Monday he probably will not be able to use the services of Bill Barthelmas, one of the 13 who was expected to have started in the opener.

Barthelmas, playing a guard spot, is expected to be out of the lineup about a week because of torn muscles, reportedly suffered during practice.

• • •

OTHER TIGER hopefuls from which Courtney will make his opening game selections are: Forwards Don Skinner, Mike Rooney, Amos Blevins, Dave Greeno, Bob Turner and Terry Stonerock; Centers Robin Jones and Tom Strawser; and Guards John Wilkes, Charles Rose, Roy Huffer and Tom Elsea.

That squad was whittled out of about 50 who answered the call to work. This year's turnout was one of the largest in recent years.

Although lacking height to any accepted degree, the 1952 Tigers are expected to make up for that point with their speed and shotability.

Circleville's reserve team, leading off in the opener, is being coached by Dick Boyd.

Harvie Ward Jr., British Amateur golf champion, was a Southern Conference titleholder for the University of North Carolina.

At Green Bay, the surprising Packers picked up their fourth straight virtory at the expense of th Dallas Texans, 42-14.

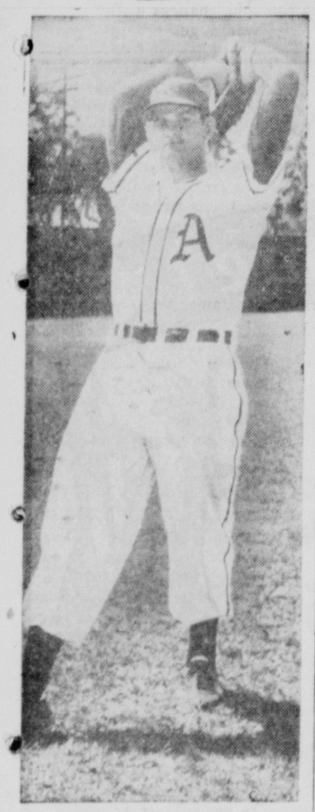
The Detroit Lions, tied for the lead with San Francisco last week, came a cropper against the Chicago Bears 24-23.

At Cleveland, the Eagles came from behind with two fourth-quarter scores to upset the Browns, 28-20.

The New York Giants, who went without a touchdown against Green Bay last week, were held scoreless by Washington for almost three periods but finally overcame a 10-0 Redskin lead to win, 14-10.

The rapidly improving Pittsburgh Steelers, playing at home, edged the Chicago Cardinals, 17-14, in a game which didn't mean much in the standings.

Lou Groza, adding to league kicking records he already held, booted two field goals and a pair of conversions. That makes him 16 field goals for the season and 96 league conversions without a miss.



HARRY BYRD, rookie pitcher of the Philadelphia Athletics this season, has been selected "rookie" of the year in the American league. Byrd, 28, is a righthander. He won 15 games. (International)

Bivins Confident In Charles Test

CHICAGO, Nov. 24 — (AP)—Both Jimmy Bivins and his manager are bursting with confidence that the Cleveland clouter will score an upset knockout victory Wednesday night over Ezzard Charles, former heavyweight champion.

"He's sharp," Bivins' mnager, Allie Zack, declared as he watched the veteran box three rounds Sunday with two sparring mates. The bout will be at 10 p. m. (EST) Wednesday in the Chicago Stadium. It will be broadcast and telecast nationally by CBS.

Bucks To Select '53 Grid Captain

COLUMBUS, Nov. 24—(AP)—Ohio State's gridders name their 1953 captain Monday night and the top candidates for the boss of the Bucks are end Bob Joslin of Middletown and All-Big-Ten tackle George Jacoby of Toledo.

The upcoming captain will join Coach Woody Hayes in leading the Ohioans through one of the toughest schedules ever faced by the Buckeyes. Starting Sept. 26, Ohio meets Indiana here, California away, Illinois here, Pennsylvania and Wisconsin on the road, Northwestern, Michigan State and Purdue here, and Michigan at Ann Arbor on successive Saturdays.

German, Yankee Speedsters Win

JUAREZ, Mexico, Nov. 24—(AP)—An unconventional German sports car, a souped up Lincoln and their drivers are sharing plaudits as winners of the world's most gruelling speed test, the Pan-American road race.

German Engineer Karl Kling, outwardly calm but inwardly feeling the strain, pushed his Mercedes Benz at speeds up to 150 miles an hour Sunday to take $17,422 first money for sports cars. Chuck Stevenson, 1952 U. S. racing champion from Fresno, Calif., nosed home first with a Lincoln in the modified stock car class and earned $11,628

Tigers Ready For 1st Tilt On Wednesday

Circleville high school will knock the cap from its 1952 basketball season Wednesday night with a road trip to Chillicothe.

The Tiger-Cavalier varsity match is expected to get underway at about 8:15 p. m. Wednesday, preceded by the reserve contest at about 7 p. m.

Coach William Courtney, in his freshman year as pilot for the Circleville hardwood fortunes, has trimmed the Tiger team down to 13 players in preparation for the trip.

However, Courtney said Monday he probably will not be able to use the services of Bill Barthelmas, one of the 13 who was expected to have started in the opener.

Barthelmas, playing a guard spot, is expected to be out of the lineup about a week because of torn muscles, reportedly suffered during practice.

• • •

OTHER TIGER hopefuls from which Courtney will make his opening game selections are: Forwards Don Skinner, Mike Rooney, Amos Blevins, Dave Greeno, Bob Turner and Terry Stonerock; Centers Robin Jones and Tom Strawser; and Guards John Wilkes, Charles Rose, Roy Huffer and Tom Elsea.

That squad was whittled out of about 50 who answered the call to work. This year's turnout was one of the largest in recent years.

Although lacking height to any accepted degree, the 1952 Tigers are expected to make up for that point with their speed and shotability.

Circleville's reserve team, leading off in the opener, is being coached by Dick Boyd.

Harvie Ward Jr., British Amateur golf champion, was a Southern Conference titleholder for the University of North Carolina.

Great Lesson Seen For Many Humans In Canine Loyalty

By ED McCANN
Herald Staff Writer

DEAR WHISPER:

Funny we should call you that, when you really made as much noise as any other dog in Pickaway County! Up until lately, anyway. Funny too that we of the human race should take time out—with all our lofty problems and all the distractions born of a superior intelligence—to note the passing of a friendly pup.

Maybe it's because we're intelligent enough to see that dogs can—in just one little way at least—attain a standard that's still beyond us. Maybe it's because we've pondered so often over the beautiful loyalty that can live in the heart of a dog, and wondered at the quality that makes it unusual in people and so common even among the mongrel hounds.

Oh sure, we all have our human friends and even the closer ones, most of us. We all know that, and we know there's a difference between love with a soul and love that comes from a blind, mysterious allegiance.

Certainly too, there should be no misunderstanding between those devoted to children and those who treasure the companionship of a dumb animal. It would surely be one of the first signs that we've reached the world's last hours if either love should end!

• • •

THERE'S HUMAN understanding and fidelity indeed, and in its own way it has no limits as far as we're permitted to see. But then too, where can you match the fearless and unyielding loyalty that has come to be the trademark of all good dogs?

Of what higher fiber is that faith that keeps a dog watching 24 hours a day—and many days if need be—for a familiar figure, listening for the one voice among the millions or the certain footstep that rings true? Why is it that, among all the animals of the earth, the one we call the dog can show so splendidly how to stand firm in a storm, guard against hidden danger and sense the changing moods of those who rule them?

Above all, how often in the human scale of things do you find a willingness to give everything—just for a pat on the head or a chance to lick a hand that has nothing to give in return?

But all of these are questions that needn't bother you, Whisper. They're for us, because it's for us they hold the lessons we're trying to learn. Trot along and give them no mind.

There's no good reason why any of us should mourn when good dogs die. For them the trail leads across great meadows where they can be no shadows, where the spirit is one filled with frolic—and where fine big hambones wait for all in the sunset.

(Nice juicy ones too, Whisper. And plenty to go around.)

• • •

AFTER ALL, it was a great romp, wasn't it? You have ever so many great days filed away forever. And far too many of us end up without being able to look back and say that sincerely.

You'll never forget that ride you had in a railroad Pullman roomette—a luxury really intended only for those who earn the money and buy the tickets. You raised too much cain in the baggage car.

And you'll always be able to laugh—in whatever way dogs laugh—when you think of the 101 funny incidents that happened before folks knew you'd never bite, or even fight uness you had to.

Remember the delivery boy who heard you bark and didn't wait to go out through the gate again? Remember how we laughed to see him jumping the porch railing, before we called him back and let you be friends? Remember the newsboy who always wanted to pet you, and how you got so embarrassed about it you'd run and hide?

On that spring afternoon, do you remember the squirrel that gave you a bad time until you chased him into his tree and hollered through his doorway? On the hot summer days surely you'll never forget those cool baths, and the chance to strut down the main drag with all your fine coat shining.

And in the winter—when you liked to run around with snow on the end of your nose—do you remember the time you tripped Laddie into the snowdrift? Boy oh boy, was he sore!

• • •

IN THE GAY moments, the ones that came with almost every passing day, we all remember the silly way you went around in circles and raised a terrific racket just to share the fun. And when there were times for folks to talk serious-like, how you'd stretch out quietly and listen. Remember? Sure, we do too.

So in the remembering, old girl, is the reward—the real reward, that is, for all of us. And with that assured there's no need for you to linger longer along the way.

They say too, to top things off, it's always best to leave behind something accomplished—or something for others started. And even in that way we can send you off in style.

We could think of ever so many fine things you did without knowing it but, just so the folks can understand, let's say you called attention again to Humane Officer Ralph Wallace's hopes to set up a private burial lot for pets in Pickaway County.

It won't mean an awful lot to most people, and a few will figure it's even ridiculous. But those who understand will remember and perhaps rally now behind the idea.

That would be a nice little bit accomplished, wouldn't it?

So for awhile then, you with the big brown eyes—good luck, take it easy and have fun. And oh yes, Whisper, we nearly forgot!

On those hambones, take your time and wait int line.

Mustn't grab!

They say too, to top things off, it's always best to leave behind something accomplished—or something for others started. And even in that way we can send you off in style.

We could think of ever so many fine things you did without knowing it but, just so the folks can understand, let's say you called attention again to Humane Officer Ralph Wallace's hopes to set up a private burial lot for pets in Pickaway County.

It won't mean an awful lot to most people, and a few will figure it's even ridiculous. But those who understand will remember and perhaps rally now behind the idea.

That would be a nice little bit accomplished, wouldn't it?

So for awhile then, you with the big brown eyes—good luck, take it easy and have fun. And oh yes, Whisper, we nearly forgot!

On those hambones, take your time and wait int line.

Mustn't grab!

History Contest Winners Named

ATHENS, Nov. 24—(AP)—Marilyn Miller of Cuyahoga Falls high school won first prize of $100 in Ohio University's sixth annual Ohio history, Government and Citizenship contest.

Winners of $10 prizes included Ninalee Burton of Hoaglin-Jackson high school (Van Wert County) and Sue Gordon of Wilmington high school.

Clothes Dryer Wrings Off Arm

HOUSTON, Nov. 24 — (AP)—A clothes dryer in a school laundry here caught Bobby Loving's right arm and wrenched it off.

"Please don't tell my dad—it will worry him too much," Bobby, 15, told junior high school coach Bert Butaud as he was being rushed to a hospital. Bobby had been helping wash athletic equipment.

Fair Meet Set

COLUMBUS, Nov. 24 — (AP)—Ohio fair managers meet here Jan. 14 and 15 to select the best fair of the 1952 season.

VERY DOGGY is the outfit worn by these felines as they prepare for a public "wedding" at a New York cat show. The daintily gowned "bride" is Cheeter Boi, and the silk-hatted "groom" is named Red Shocker. Both are owned by Marie Ward of Brooklyn. (International)

Theater To Close

NEW YORK, Nov. 24 — (AP)—The Roxy Theater will close for the first time in 25 years next Sunday for a three-week period of alterations, at a cost of $200,000.

Ancient Egyptians visualized the earth as a round ball.

Would You Laud Or Lambaste 'Em?

SAO PAULO, Brazil, Nov. 24—(AP)—A 15-year-old pupil knew too many answers in an exam at McKenzie high school here.

Amazed teachers found he was tuned in on a private broadcast from a fellow pupil, who was standing outside the hall, answer book in hand. The pair, rating an "A" for radio engineering, used a microphone the size of a tiny wrist watch and speakers so small they could be fastened with adhesive tape to their ears.

The first U. S. building specially built for astronomical observations was constructed near Philadelphia in 1769.
